

GRAY AND MRS. SNYDER DIE JUNE 20

WEATHER DELAYS FLIGHT TO PARIS

THREE SHIPS READY TO ATTEMPT FLIGHT IF WEATHER CLEARS

"Human Meteor" Seems
Most Spectacular
Of Aviators

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 13.—Capt. Charles Nungesser and Capt. Francois Coli still missing and no trace of their airplane discovered by searching ships, final plans were made at the Curtiss and Roosevelt flying fields today for an attempted non-stop flight from New York to Paris over practically the same route that the ill-fated French airmen planned to follow.

Aviators Lloyd Bertaud and Clarence Chamberlin had hoped to be able to hop off this morning in their big Bellanca machine, the "Columbia," but reports of weather conditions over the Atlantic were so unfavorable that they decided to wait. They are hopeful of getting away tonight or tomorrow.

Capt. Charles Lindbergh, the "human meteor," who nonchalantly flew 2,500 miles from San Diego, Calif., to Curtiss flying field in twenty-one hours and twenty minutes, is all set to hop off in his monoplane alone. He may leave any time. He is not operating on set schedule.

Lindbergh is the most spectacular of the airmen who will attempt the long journey to the French capital. Only twenty-five years old, he has escaped death by a hair's breadth half a dozen times.

The third plane groomed for the sensational trans-Atlantic trip is a gigantic Fokker called the "America." This machine, which is equipped with three powerful motors, will be in command of Commander Richard E. Byrd, hero of the North Pole flight. This machine reached Roosevelt flying field late yesterday just after Lindbergh's monoplane had swooped to earth on the Curtiss field.

The "America" is still being groomed and tuned up by mechanics, but Commander Byrd said he is ready to start at any time. He may get away within forty-eight hours if weather conditions are favorable.

"Lucky" Lindbergh, as his fellow airmen call him, is not making any great preparations for the big hop. He overhauled his monoplane to see that the mechanism was working smoothly and tested the gear, but is not doing much in the way of securing personal comforts.

"I do not even know if I will take any hot coffee supply," said the young dare devil of the skies. "I will want some sandwiches and plenty of drinking water, but I don't think I will be long enough on the way to suffer very much from hunger. I am going to be busy watching the board."

Lindbergh referred to the instrument board in front of the pilot's seat. The array of shining instruments attached to this item of equipment is an imposing one. They include a temperature gauge, oil pressure gauge, tachometer, altimeter, turn and bank indicator, speed timer, earth inductor compass and a time clock. In addition there is the lower end of a periscope for the machine is so built that the pilot from his low cockpit can look only out the side window. He must use the periscope to look ahead.

Lindbergh will fly for the $25,000 prize offered by Raymond Orteig for a successful non-stop flight between New York and Paris. Bertaud, Chamberlin and Byrd were not formally entered in the contest for the prize, and therefore not eligible according to the rules of the aeronautical association.

Lindbergh entered formally in the competition for the $125,000 prize in advance of start. This was one of his conditions.

Reports from the western zone of the Atlantic stated that high winds were stirring up a rough sea.

The hop across the Atlantic holds no great thrill for Lindbergh. "I know it's a great pan of water, but I don't see why such a fuss would be made over it. I am going to look upon it as though it were my regular mail run from St. Louis to Chicago," he said.

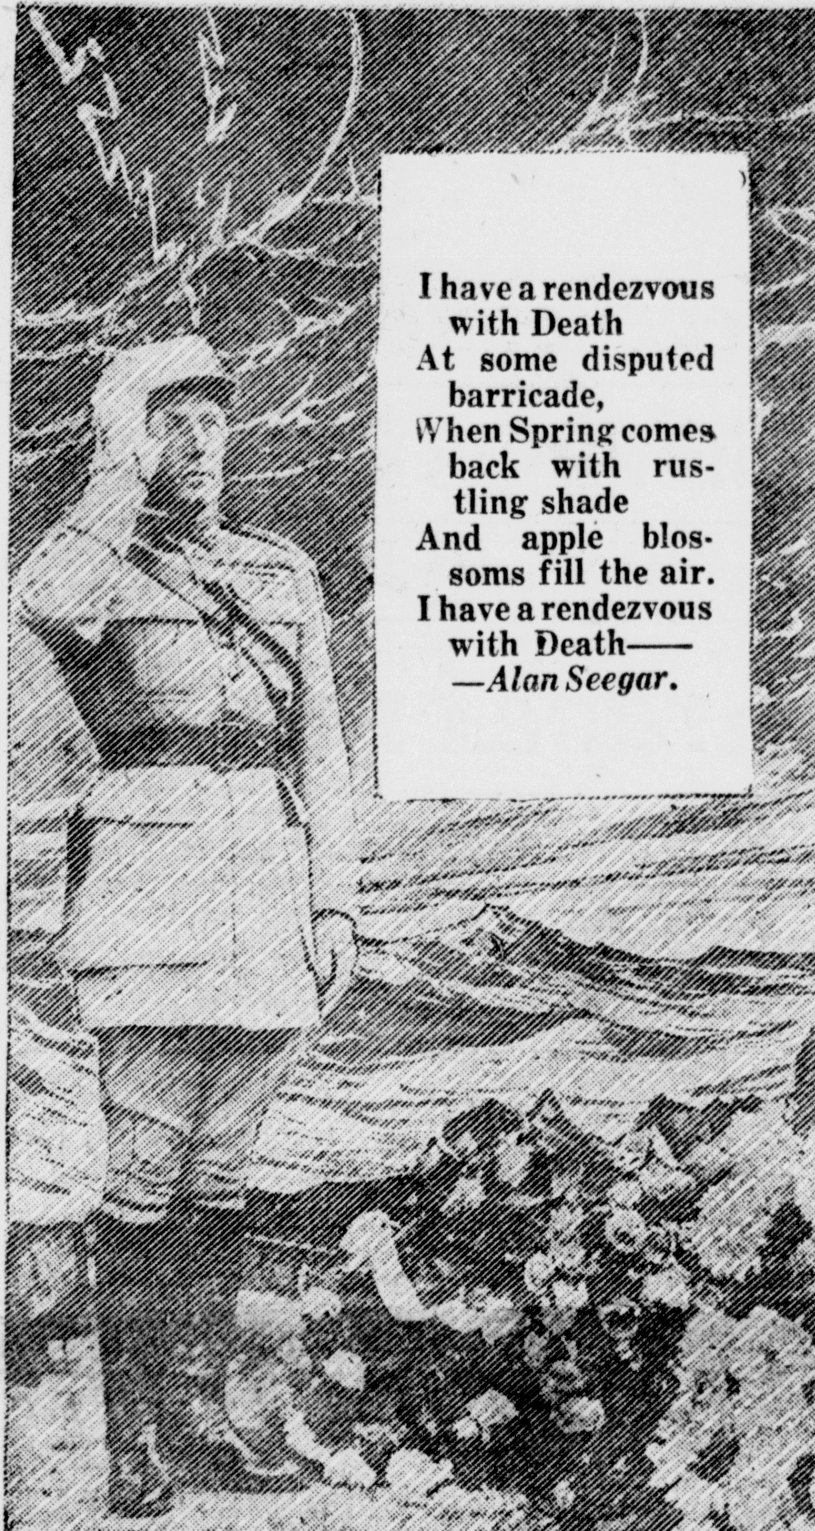

FRIDAY BRINGS BAD LUCK FOR GERMANS

BERLIN, May 13.—Friday the thirteenth was indeed an unlucky day for many Berlin stock exchange operators.

Something akin to a panic developed on the stock exchange, when stocks crashed an average of forty points as the result of credit restrictions imposed on banks by President Schacht of the Reichsbank.

STAGE TRAGEDIENNE LAYS BARE LOVE SECRETS IN MURDER CASE

Dorothy Mackaye Risks Incrimination To Epose
Dorothy Mackaye Risks Incrimination To Epose
Slayer Of Her Husband

LOS ANGELES, May 13.—Love secrets of an actress lay bare today as Dorothy Mackaye, stage tragedienne, prepared to return to the witness stand at the murder trial of Paul Kelly to tell more of her intimate associations with the young screen hero.

At the risk of self-incrimination, she has volunteered to tell all she knows of the events which led to the tragic death of her husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy actor. Raymond, the state charges died from fist blows dealt by the strapping Kelly.

While the impetuous film lover makes open declaration of his devotion to Miss Mackaye, the prosecution will seek to establish a love motive for the alleged murder by documentary evidence. This was indicated today when the district attorney's office promised that a batch of Kelly's letters, said to be couched in endearing terms, and addressed to Miss Mackaye, would be read in court while the actress is on the stand.

Raymond's widow testified she had visited Kelly's apartment while her husband was on a theatrical tour.

FORCES GATHER FOR MOCK COAST BATTLE

NEWPORT, R. I., May 13.—Rhode Island today took on the appearance of war time, as the advance guard of the big "black" and "blue" war game forces began to gather.

Twenty-two seaplanes from Norfolk took trial flights over Newport and the U. S. S. Patoka, mast ship of the dirigible Los Angeles, anchored off shore with twelve planes aboard.

The U. S. S. Wright, naval airship "mother" ship, was also in Middletown.

An air base was being set up in Middletown.

many times?" the prosecutor insisted.

"Yes, sir," she whispered. Ethel Lees, negro maid in the Raymond household, who previously testified Miss Mackaye spent "many nights" away from home, was recalled to identify a photograph of Raymond in a "strong man" pose.

"Mr. Raymond wasn't in that good condition," she explained as she studied the pictured muscles. "He wasn't as heavy as that."

In her eye-witness account of the fatal fist fight the servant girl had described Kelly as the physical superior of his opponent.

RELEASE FLYERS AS GIRL RETURNS HOME

DAYTON, O., May 13.—Dorothy Bevin, 16, was enroute to her home at Washington, D. C., today, and Fred Parker, 40, and Ernest Burns, 28, were enroute to Anderson, Ind., after their release by department of justice investigators.

The girl who was accompanying Parker and Burns in two airplanes from the Washington airfield, was detained at the request of her mother, who had instituted a nation wide search for her following her disappearance several days ago.

Parker agreed to pay the girl's expenses back to the capital. The girl said her mother was a widow, and that her father was killed several years ago in an accident.

PROTEST SAYS RAID VIOLATES BRITISH AGREEMENT OF 1921

Allege Police Found Unreliable Papers Of Government

LONDON, May 13.—Formal protest against the police raids on Arcos, Ltd., headquarters of the soviet trade delegation and the soviet trading organization in London, was made today by Russian charge Rosengoltz.

The Russian charge called on Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister, this afternoon and registered a diplomatic protest against the action of the police. It is understood that the protest was based on the fact that the official soviet trade delegation has diplomatic immunity.

There appeared to be little chance of the British government backing down on the action taken by the police and a rupture of the Anglo-Russian trade agreement is expected to follow.

Meanwhile scores of policemen, some of them armed, remained in possession of Soviet house, headquarters of the Soviet Russian trade delegation, which was raided yesterday.

The exact object of the raid is still unexplained in official circles, although it is believed the police are searching for evidence of organized propaganda against the British government.

Belief exists that the raid will result in the breaking off of British relations with Moscow.

It was reported that the home office had received information leading home Secretary Sir William Joynson Hicks to believe that officials of Arcos, Ltd., were in possession of British state documents which should not be out of the hands of the British government.

When the police entered one room during the night they saw a number of documents burning. This made haste to put out the flames, and are thought to have rescued the most important parts of the papers.

As soon as commons convened the raid was made the subject of a government interpellation by Arthur Henderson, a laborite member. Henderson asked the home secretary to explain the purpose of the raid.

The home secretary replied that the home office had authorized the raid on information from the police, adding that he would be unable to give further information for a day or two.

Employees of Arcos, Ltd., were permitted to enter this morning upon showing their identity cards, but no others were admitted. Telephone service was suspended.

A police guard has been placed over the private radio apparatus maintained by the Russians.

At the foreign office it was stated that Arcos, Ltd., is a private trading organization and has no diplomatic immunity, and the only possible grounds of protest were that possibly some of the room occupied by the Soviet trade delegation, which has diplomatic immunity, were entered by the police.

The Russian charge delivered a formal note of protest to Sir Austen, charging that the raids on the Arcos building constitute a violation of the obligations assumed by the British government under the trade agreement of 1921.

The Russian charge stated that he had informed his government of the search, which was still continuing this evening, and he awaits further instructions from Moscow.

AVIATION EXPERTS STILL HAVE HOPES FOR MISSING AIR PILOTS

Possibility That Flyers May Have Collided With
Mountain In Labrador Entertained—St. John's Clue Probed.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The possibility that Capt. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, trans-oceanic fliers, may be struggling to find their way to civilization from the wilds of Labrador or Newfoundland continued to occupy the attention of army and navy aviation experts here today.

Despite the sharp lookouts maintained at sea, officials base their chief hopes, as from the first, on the possibility that the fliers reached land far north of their proposed course.

The remarkable escape of Major Frederick Martin, army round-the-world flier, was pointed to by navy experts. Maj. Martin crashed in to the side of a mountain in Alaskan territory and finally was rescued. The French fliers, it was said, might have run into a mountain in Labrador.

Receipt of the official proposed route of the fliers from Paris confirmed the previously announced deductions of Lieut. L. C. Ramsey, navy hydrographer, reported by International News Service several days ago.

Errors in navigation due to weather conditions, darkness or choice might have caused the fliers to land in Labrador, he said. The country, mountainous, cold and almost uninhabited, has many small lakes on which a landing could have been made.

Search concentrated today between Harbor Grace and Blancet Bay, Newfoundland.

On the strength of statements from at least six reputable residents of Harbor Grace, north of St. John's, that they heard an airplane passing in the fog Monday, searching parties have been dispatched on foot to scour the forests and rock inlets along the coast.

SCHOOL CHILDREN CALLED TO LEVEE DEFENSE AS MEN FAIL

Exhausted Defenders Continue Battle To Check
Flood—Coast Guard Hurries To Scene
Of Cottonport Break

BATON ROUGE, La., May 13.—School children of Morgansea were thrown into the front line of levee defenders today along the west bank of the Mississippi on the Pointe Coupe parish, twenty miles from here. Three successive levee washouts along a five mile stretch near the tiny village since Monday exhausted the energies of the main population of the community and forced them to call upon their children for relief stints in the desperate fight against the still rising main channel.

Morgansea, a village of 350 persons, is approximately thirty miles south of the Bayou Des Glaisses, on the eastern edge of which the grim struggle against the flood waters from northeastern Louisiana continues this morning despite the Cottonport break yesterday which cut a hundred foot channel three feet deep through the western extremity of the Bayou barrier.

Waters from the Cottonport crevasse, in Avoyelles parish and thirty-five miles in from the Mississippi, had spread a shallow layer southward and eastward today to the northern boundary of St. Landry parish. The city of Cottonport was under three feet of water. Reports to relief headquarters here were that the opening likely could not widen fast enough to prevent a larger break in the Bayou levees to the east.

Cottonport is at the extreme western edge of the Louisiana area flooded from the north. Overnight studies of the topography convinced engineers that the volume of water released there would not be sufficient to relieve the eastern stretches of the levee where with the water already washing over at several points, the menacing surface still rises hourly. Pointe Coupe parish, with an area of 526 square miles and a population of 25,000, would be almost entirely inundated by a break at Morgansea, according to reports to relief headquarters.

The parish, a waterlocked triangle with the apex fitted into a ten mile bayou which forms the confluence of the Black, the Old, the Atchafalaya and the Mississippi rivers, is bounded throughout its length from north to south by the Atchafalaya on the west and the Mississippi on the east. Its Mississippi levee had been regarded as in good condition and the evacuation order of a week ago which warned of danger in parishes west of the Atchafalaya did not embrace any but the extreme northern portion of Pointe Coupe.

Half an hour after the Cottonport break, coast guard cutters with long tow of eighteen-men flat bottom skiffs were at the scene taking on these immediately behind the crevasse. Many through-out adjoining parishes who had refused to heed the evacuation orders were moved to preparations by the news of the break.

TAFT SCORES DELAY IN CRIMINAL COURTS

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The legal professional has too many members who delay the effective operation of criminal law, according to Chief Justice Wm. Howard Taft of the U. S. Supreme Court.

"No lover of his country can have gone through the last four years without being stirred over the failure of the administration of our criminal law," said the Chief Justice, addressing the American Law Institute. "We love our profession, but we know we have them," referring to those lawyers who are experts in delay.

NEVADA BEGINS MORATORIUM AS REMEDY FOR BIG EMBEZZLEMENT FROM STATE

RENO, Nev., May 13.—With half a million dollars missing from the state treasury, Nevada today began a five-day moratorium, during which all financial activity of the state government will be halted.

Governor Balzar declared the moratorium upon completion of an audit of the books of State Treasurer Ed Malley. Malley, former State Controller George Cole and E. W. Clapp, former cashier of the Carson Valley bank, is accused of embezzling $516,000.

The state treasurer, however, contends the huge shortage is in the books of the Carson valley bank and not in the state ledgers. By an adroit maneuver Malley ed the state and the bank on the defensive. He appeared at the bank presenting cashier's checks totalling well over half a million dollars and demanding payments. The bank refused to honor payment.

Malley thereby is said to have placed the state and the bank on of proving the checks fraudulent. Furthermore, it was said, the bank now will be forced to take legal action independent of the state prosecution.

John Moran, clerk of court, turned to her and asked:

"Have you anything to say before sentence of this court is passed upon you?"

She did not reply but turned to Edgar F. Hazelton, her attorney, who stood nearby.

"The defendant Snyder has already said why sentence should not be passed upon her and has nothing further to say at this time," said Hazelton.

Justice Scudder then intoned the formula which sentenced Mrs. Snyder to solitary confinement until she is "done to death at Sing Sing prison the week beginning June 20 next."

Mrs. Snyder looked directly at Justice Scudder as he pronounced the sentence. There was a gleam of the old defiance in her green-blue eyes and her lips were tightly compressed.

Gray then was sentenced. He walked before the bar of justice, head up, shoulders squared. He, too, accepted the verdict calmly, although a flush mantled his dark face.

The convicted couple, however, will not be taken to the death house at Sing Sing immediately, as planned. Justice Scudder granted the request of their counsel that they be permitted to remain in Queens County jail until Monday to wind up their affairs and pay their farewells to relatives.

Mrs. Snyder and Gray's last public appearance was before another crowded courtroom, fully five hundred persons jamming every available bit of space to see the final act in this great drama. All the spectators remained on their feet while the sentence was given. The judge was extremely grave in his demeanor.

Justice Scudder took the bench shortly after 10 o'clock. A moment later Mrs. Snyder, flanked by two matrons walked rapidly into the courtroom. Gray, also guarded, followed almost immediately.

They stood about four feet apart in front of the judge's bench as they received sentence. They did not glance at each other.

Before Justice Scudder imposed sentence, Attorney Hazelton made a number of motions, including one asking that the verdict be set aside, but all of them were denied. Similar motions were made in behalf of Gray by his attorney, William J. Millard, but they, too, were denied.

None of the relatives of the condemned pair was in the courtroom. Mrs. Snyder's mother remained in the Snyder home at Queens village where Snyder was beaten to death with an iron sashweight on the morning of March 20 as he slept. Gray's mother, who had attended the trial, also remained at home but she plans to visit her son in the prison tomorrow.

The jurors who convicted the couple were in their seats in the jury box as sentence was pronounced, although Hazelton had requested that they be excluded during the proceedings.

When Gray was asked if he had anything to say, Millard spoke for him at once saying, "No."

The spectators, sensing the solemnity of the occasion, maintained absolute silence as sentence was intoned.

The proceedings were over quickly. As the judge finished his fateful words, there was a moment of hesitation. Then Attorney Millard turned to Gray and whispered:

"Keep up your hope." The dapper little corset salesman smiled wanly.

The prisoners then were led from the courtroom and back to their cells in the jail. They swept out without a glance at the spectators gaping at them.

PRISONERS LISTEN CALMLY AS JUSTICE PRONOUNCES DOOM

Couple Will Remain In
Queens Jail For
Farewells

COURTHOUSE, Long Island City, N. Y., May 13.—Ruth Brown Snyder and her one-time sweetheart, Henry Judd Gray, were sentenced today to die in the electric chair in Sing Sing the week of June 20.

In the same court room where they were found guilty of the sashweight murder of Albert Snyder, the art editor who "didn't understand" his sprightly blonde wife, sentence was imposed upon them by Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder.

Doom of the convicted couple was pronounced on "Friday the thirteenth" and the terrifying significance of the sentence was accentuated by the slow, sonorous tones of the judge as he pronounced it.

Mrs. Snyder was sentenced first. She heard the fateful words calmly without any outward show of emotion. She wore the same black coat, black hat and jet beads which she wore throughout the trial. Before coming into court she showed her vanity by washing and arranging her hair and polishing her nails.

She stood before the judge's bench between two prison matrons. John Moran, clerk of court, turned to her and asked:

"Have you anything to say before sentence of this court is passed upon you?"

She did not reply but turned to Edgar F. Hazelton, her attorney, who stood nearby.

KANSAS YOUTH WILL PLAY LEAD IN MARY PICKFORD'S NEXT FILM

WITH ONLY TWO YEARS OF EXPERIENCE "BUDDY" ROGERS, A COUNTRY BOY FROM KANSAS, HAS BEEN CHOSEN BY MARY PICKFORD TO PLAY OPPOSITE HER IN HER NEW PICTURE. HERE ARE MARY AND BUDDY. WHAT'S YOUR OPINION OF HER JUDGMENT?

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927 made up his mind to shine on the screen, he attacked his chosen career with a sagacity beyond his years.

He left Olathe and went to New York, where he got in touch with officials of the Paramount company. This organization has a school on Long Island where young aspirants who show promise are carefully trained in the requirements of motion picture acting. To be admitted to the class is, in itself, an indication that the candidate has at least the germ of success within him.

Paramount Graduate

Rogers entered without much difficulty. He observed instructions carefully, absorbed the atmosphere, and after several months appeared in his first play, produced at the school by the students. "Pampering Youth" was the title.

His work in this initial effort won praise. Buddy moved to Hollywood and played small parts for several months. This was less than two years ago. His good looks, combined with his intelligence in interpretation of directors' orders, marked him out. Clara Bow chose him to play opposite her in "Wings."

Mary and Doug saw "Wings" of course. Mary said: "There's the boy I want for my next picture." And Doug said: "Mary, you're right."

That's how it happened that Buddy Rogers, the country boy from Kansas, was able to write his parents the other day and say: "What do you know? Mary Pickford has signed me to play her next lead. Isn't that GREAT?"

There were nine cubs in the litter and Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Carothers took them home. Now they don't know how they are going to divide them equally between the Hull and Carothers families.

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing. Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great numbers in factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it. weeks thereafter during the summer. Proceeds for building fund.

A special missionary program will be given at the church Sunday evening, May 15, under the direction of the missionary committee, Mrs. Friend Couser, Mrs. Robert Bear and Mrs. Lester Dardinger. At 7:45 Sunday evening, May 2, a meeting in the interest of the Week-Day Religious Education in the public schools, will be held at the church at Zimmerman.

Mr. J. L. Rogers, executive secretary of the Dayton Sunday School Council of Religious Education will be the principal speaker with special musical numbers, etc. Everyone is cordially invited.

The following item was omitted from our last communication: The funeral of Mrs. Lewis Stewart, at the church in Zimmerman, was attended by the largest number of persons ever assembled for such an occasion at this place, church and Sunday School rooms being filled to capacity with probably as many people on the outside of the building.

Rev. Eldemiller, her pastor, delivered a splendid address with music by choir. Interment in Mt. Zion Cemetery.

The funeral was one of the most popular members of church and community, both of which will sincerely feel and mourn her loss.

Friend Couser and H. C. Haverstick gave an interesting account of their trip to Rennels' Creek Church dedicatory services, describing the rough, hilly, southern Ohio country, the hardships and poverty of the inhabitants, etc. Rev. Eldemiller, who preached the dedicatory sermon, also reported on the hearty earnestness and faith of these people who love their hill country homes and church, many walking several miles up and down hill to attend religious services.

The Couser quartet gave a musical program at a neighboring church, near their former home in Adams County, on Saturday evening, preceding above mentioned services.

Mrs. Friend Couser and Mrs. Robert Bear had charge of an interesting Junior League meeting Sunday evening, while the adults were studying the book, "Stewardship for All of Life." AN OUTDOOR CLUB

A new type of club has been organized in Ashtabula, O. It is the Outdoor Club, established by 100 residents of that city. They have dammed a small river and formed a 13-acre lake for fishing, boating and swimming. They have purchased a 1200-acre tract of land which is to be preserved for members and their children as a great playground.

Members drew choices for lots in the club preserve and are allowed to do whatever they want—within certain restrictions—on their own lots. One family, for example, may have a log cabin; another may go in for a miniature forest preserve. One member says he has 18 different varieties of native trees growing in his 40 by 80 "forest."

There will be children's playgrounds, facilities for boating, swimming, trap-shooting, rifle practice, fishing, tennis, baseball and just about everything except golf.

Golf is omitted simply because the members have other opportunities to play that game at near-by country or golf clubs. The Outdoor Club is to meet hitherto unfilled needs. It is much like a great park, privately owned and controlled by a group of citizens who appreciate outdoor life and want to get it close to their homes.

REFUSING TO LIMIT ARMS

"Arms serve Italy, not for combating the world, but for living in the world," says Giacomo Martignone, Fascist journalist.

Mr. Martignone makes this statement in explaining some of the reasons behind Premier Mussolini's refusal to participate in President Coolidge's suggested conference on limitation of naval armament.

"Disarmament cannot be obtained by determining the relations of equality between the forces of the military, the air and the naval fleets," says Mr. Martignone. "It is impossible to consider all the factors of the military force of a nation, with its geographical position, its economic power, and its ability to transform every energy into military activity in times of war."

He continues: "Propositions for the naval fleet at the present time do not interest Italy. First of all, our construction—at least 300,000,000 lire ($13,000,000)—has been appropriated for the purpose of naval defense—cannot be reduced without alarming prejudice to the country's defense, surrounded as she is by seas and by oceans, situated as she is in the heart of the Mediterranean like a landing dock. Italy derives power, and at the same time is weak, from this strategic but dangerous position, and all around her are the natural battlefields of the European nations."

"To suppose that Italian Fascism is seeking war is a mistake; but in order to avoid it Italy feels that she must be prepared to be a proper fighting force, and to have a proper naval equipment for complete defense."

"Possibly a tragedy awaits us, but we cannot stop. Our people cannot emigrate; we are compressed within a peninsula where the natural resources are not sufficient for our growing population; and for the eventualities of the future Italy feels that her people must be prepared. She cannot face the idea of a limited navy."

Just why Italy cannot limit her armaments if other nations do, Mr. Martignone does not say.

PRESENT UPHEAVAL DIFFERS

Today two forces are operating in China, says Frank H. Simonds in the Review of Reviews, which serve to make the present upheaval different to a degree from other uprisings that have been a familiar detail in Chinese history for almost innumerable centuries. These two forces represent, first, the activities of the Young Chinese, who have been trained largely in American schools and colleges, but in a lesser degree in European; secondly, the agents of the Russian Soviet, who have found in Chinese unrest a fruitful field for their propaganda.

At the bottom of the activities of the Young Chinese, is the determination to expel the West from all political power in Chinese territory and to repeat in China the blessings of western democratic rule. The Soviet purpose is different. While the Bolsheviks would naturally welcome any chance to establish their ideas in China, their main purpose is to exploit Chinese conditions to the disadvantage of all western and capitalistic states. And Great Britain, beyond all other countries, is the target of Russian effort.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

By Marjorie K. Rawlings

"ME AND MINE"

"Me and mine" seem best to me,
And my own way of living.
With my own notions I agree,
My own mistakes forgiving.

"Me and mine" are sacred soil,
With only virtues growing,
Where I exalt my common lot
And see it fine and glowing.

"You and yours" seem best to you;
Your life, your house, your garden;
Your errors and your sins are few,
And ease, those, to pardon.

If I exchanged my ways with yours,
My life, my hallowed ground,
We should feel and think, of course,
The other way around!

How to Achieve Beauty

THE MOBILE MOUTH

Today, in further considering the essentials which make for mouth beauty, I want you to realize the importance of keeping the lips firmly rounded and mobile.

And, in connection with keeping the mouth, and for that matter the entire expression of face youthful, one of the most important things to remember is to have the corners of your mouth turned up and not down.

The surest way to keep the corners of the mouth turned upward is to smile often. The frequent smile is a real face lifter of the natural sort and can do heaps more to keep your contour youthful than the most able beauty surgeon.

Smiles actually lift the muscles of the face and if you cultivate a ready smile and the happy expression that goes with it, you will most assuredly be doing something really worth while for your beauty.

The next essential toward making the mouth mobile is to keep the lips soft and pliable, by manner in which you handle your lips, tongue and teeth when talking. Clear enunciation and proper self-confidence.

articulation of your words will do much to make your mouth expressive. I have often seen an other wise plain face really made beautiful because it possessed a pleasingly expressive mouth.

I think it is the duty of every woman who takes pride in her good looks and who realizes what an important part her mouth plays in connection with her beauty to give serious thought to the underlying fundamentals that result in a mobile mouth.

And I hope any woman who reads this article today and who is aware that her manner of speech is such that it is detracting from the beauty of her mouth will make haste to study the fundamentals of proper diction, because the best way I know of to cultivate a mobile expression of the lips is to follow some of the underlying rules which are taught in the study of correct diction.

Diction is really a large and complete subject within itself and my time and space today is too limited to permit me to go into it in any detail, but I simply want to impress upon you the importance of going in seriously for the study of diction, if you feel your manner of speech is not up to the mark. Correct diction not only has an important bearing on the shape of the lips and mouth, but also upon the entire poise and carriage of the body, for it inspires

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, May 13.—The first electric sign on Broadway graced a roof top at Thirty-eighth St. It represented a chariot race. The chariot and horses took up three-quarters of the sign and the rest was advertising. It wasn't altogether a success. Pedestrians stood gaping at the interminable race, in no way associating it with the product it was designed to stamp on the mind of the multitude.

Advance has been made since then in the art of incandescent exploitation, but the advertisers have been so greedy in the way they've plastered every available house front and roof top along Broadway and its environs with their blazing messages that the eyes of the beholders blink in protest at the blinding display.

When the sun drops down behind the Jersey hills, twilight comes stealing along Edison Alley and New York starts its nightly slide towards hell, there bursts upon the tortured vision a wild intermarriage of blazing tone represented by 25,000,000 candle-power concentrated in 1,243,538 incandescent lamps, the reflection from which blots out the twinkling stars staining the sable skies a dull, sickly saffron.

The signs are so varied, weird, extraordinary and so closely grouped that after five minutes of puzzled contemplation the bewildered pedestrian isn't sure whether he's been commanded to grease his pan cakes with Smith's shoe polish or try Eskimo ginger ale on the piano legs.

A movement is under way to minimize this confusion of blazing bulbs. With every new building going up in the sign-belt, the electric advertising men are conferring with the architects in an endeavor to fit their electric messages with some effectiveness into the general scene. Whether they will succeed and eventually bring about relief to the pedestrian's tortured vision, is matter for conjecture.

Having advertised everything the well-dressed man, woman, child chauffeur, nurse-maid, and flunky will wear, one of the leading Salons ends its daily full-page claim to attention in a leading morning journal with the injunction: "And don't forget the dog's new spring outfit!"

You can get no better slant on the life and thought of a town than by studying the advertisements in the newspapers.

It is doubtless a fact that the large department stores in New York keep the bigwig morning and evening papers going. All anyone who doubts this has to do is to glance over a forty-five-page morning journal with the injunction: "And don't forget the dog's new spring outfit!"

Motion picture actors are taking long location trips these days. The latest exodus, which caused quite a gap in the film colony, occurred when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer chartered a special train of 14 cars to take a company to Colorado to film a picture which will portray the famous Alaska gold rush over Chilkoot pass.

Rolled Stocking Liked For Derby Winner Saturday

WESTERN MUDDER IS GIVEN ATTENTION FROM WISE PICKERS

Whitney Stable Is Favorite For Classic Of Kentucky Turf

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service
Sports Editor.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—It may be a case of mixing metaphors in a country where everybody is supposed to mix drinks but the fact of the matter is that the name of Rolled Stockings is on every tongue today, twenty-four hours before the field will break from the barriers in the race of all races, Kentucky's annual derby.

Stop a horseman, real or fancied, anywhere along Fourth St., which means bracing the first stranger you meet; then ask him who he likes in the race.

In the first place, if you don't, he is likely to misunderstand and either had you a dime or clip on the van dyke. In the second place, he may know something, since it isn't possible that everybody is as dumb as he looks.

Perhaps he will mention the Whitney entry or Bostonian and Whiskery but, if he does, he will qualify the choice by also naming Rolled Stocking. It may be that Rip Rap, or the Sage Stable, has caught his fancy, for it is quite remarkable the number of imaginations this colt has succeeded in intriguing overnight. Again, however, there will be that second guess on Rolled Stocking.

In the same way, it might be Black Panther or Fred, Jr., a feed bill horse that has managed to get himself taken rather seriously, but the stranger somehow will contrive to get Rolled Stocking into the conversation.

And at least two men in five are picking him to win, although there is slight doubt now that the Whitney entry will go to the post a reigning favorite. You can't go behind this pair any more than you can go behind the name of your neck but, barring that, Rolled Stocking is the stand-out horse of the race today.

The leaning toward Rip Rap, Black Panther and a few casual others is a mere symptom; but Rolled Stocking and the Whitney entry are an epidemic.

The colts mentioned seem to be the only ones that are given the chance of an orphan by those who are supposed to know. Osmond, winter book favorite, is not esteemed at all after straightening out like tight rope in his last race at the Downs several days ago. Hydromel, a hot choice a week ago, suddenly ran a fever after a good race on Monday and now no one would take him for hacking at the depot.

The Bradley entries, Boo, Bewithus and Buddy Bauer, have everyone at the track looking down the nose at them. They say Boo won't start at all and that Buddy Bauer would be smart, if he didn't, either. Buddy ran twelfth in a field of twelve in the Preakness on Monday.

Here and there, you will find a citizen who likes Osmond and even Scape Flow, in spite of that colt's unimpressive race at Pimlico; Dan O'Sullivan, who has seen more derbies than the original mad hatter, is sticking with Osmond and Scott Harlan persists in declaring himself on Scape Flow, but the mob is going the other way.

As for the reps of the field, Sax, on Jock, Kiev, another winter delusion; War Eagle, Royal Jullian, Candy Blackbird, Crystal Domino, Mr. Kirkwood and Fair Star, they will be among those present and unaccounted for, according to the popular idea hereabouts.

Strange to relate, they like Whiskery better than Bostonian, in spite of the fact that the latter won the Preakness and Whiskery ran third. There is no apparent reason for this attitude except that Whiskery has the better turn of speed and may "break on top," as they say. This is an important consideration in a race like the derby on a probable field of eighteen or twenty horses to hamper the colt that likes to do his running in the stretch.

Bostonian is supposed to be this type. So is Fred, Jr. If either or both is anywhere near the pace at the mile on Saturday there will be a lot of running done down near the grandstand. However, if they are well back in the head of the stretch, all the running in the world won't get them anything except the exercise.

Rip Rap's rise to favor is unexplained by his races in the East. However, the intelligentsia hereabouts claim to have been greatly impressed by his "works" under the watch.

And then we come back to Rolled Stocking, as the m. eye may say. They say he was all horse in winning the last derby trial and can run in any going or any company. That closes the book, except for the observation that no derby within ten years has been as open to any good horse as is the one that will take place tomorrow on the Downs.

SCOUTS WHITEWASH KIWANIAN TEAM IN SOFT BALL CONTEST

Boy Scouts easily triumphed over the Kiwanis Club in a Xenia Recreation League soft ball game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday afternoon, turning the game into a track meet to win 41 to 13, by far the largest score recorded in any league games to date.

Scouts paraded around the bases at will and every member of the winning team crossed the plate at least twice. The great score was principally due to the inability of the Kiwanians to field the ball and the team's defense was atrocious.

McLaughlin and Adair divided the pitching for Kiwanis with Gibney hurling the entire game for the Scouts.

Scouts took a lead in the third inning by scoring eight times, which was never relinquished.

Tull and Turnbull umpired the contest.

Scout lineup: Monroe, 3b; Bell, ss; Gibney, p; Hampson, cf; Zell, lf; Stout, 1b; Adair, c; Buell, rf; Rice, 2b; Finlay, lf; Hornick, cf; Kiwanis lineup: Adair, rf; Kolb, ss; Ballantyne, 2b; E. Babb, lf; Coates, 3b; Faires, c; McLaughlin, p; Messenger, lf; Pendry, 1b.

Score by innings:
Scouts 18 14 10 6 5 0 3 41
Kiwanis 3 3 1 0 0 2 0 4 13

RESERVES TO MEET BELLBROOK IN LOOP GAME HERE SUNDAY

Teams in the Buckeye League, which were idle last Sunday because rain interrupted the schedule, will resume play Sunday afternoon with contests carried for Xenia, Beavertown and Harshmanville diamonds.

Xenia Reserves, accredited with two league victories this season, will attempt to preserve this record against the tail-end Bellbrook nine, which has yet to snag a victory in two starts. Bellbrook has re-enforced its lineup for this game and so anything can happen.

It is understood Bellbrook has obtained the pitching services of Bob Herman, who was released by the Reserves after he had won three straight games. Thus Herman will probably hurl against his former teammates Sunday at Washington Park.

Dayton Police will go to Beavertown for a game and the Osborn Miami Cementers will play at Harshmanville.

EXAMINE ATHLETES

Dr. F. M. Chambliss, athletic examiner for the Xenia City Schools, has begun the examination of athletes of Central High School, on the start of his tour of the city schools.

Examination of all school athletes is made after the close of each athletic season and Central High School is the first on the examiner's list.

This idea of getting you folks to come in here and see the enormous splendidly selected assortment of tires we have was suggested by our good friend and supporter SHORTY. This is really the first and only time since he has been with us that he has given birth to a good sound idea or plan!

Otherwise we would have fired him!

Remember there are only TWENTY-FIVE XENIANS GET THESE BARGAINS!

Every tire we carry is guaranteed not only by the factory which MAKES them but also carries our OWN PERSONAL GUARANTEE which makes us a blamed sight more liable than if we depended on the manufacturers' alone!

In addition we give "free tire service" to any purchaser of our tires ANY PLACE IN THE COUNTY! And THAT'S going some!

CHARLEY AND PROSPERITY.

Shorty

Applesauce! Talk about firing me! I've increased their tire business nearly double! Either it's been ME or it's been the weather—one of us did it alright!

It's a fact tho that they have some very sweet and charming tires here in stock and while most of you folks out in front are rich and don't need the money still it seems like that discount ought to be interesting to you, What?

KIDNEY AND BLADDER SUFFERERS OF (insert name of your city) READ MY STORY

Amazing Story of 63-Year-Old Man Who Relieved Kidney, Bladder and Rheumatic Pains Through the Use of MATAMEL, MADE FROM SAP OF THE MAGUEY PLANT, Not a Patent Medicine.

NO MORE Getting Up Nights

Suppose you were 63 years old, had suffered with kidney and bladder torture for one-quarter of a century—so bad, in fact, you had to give up your job and expected the worst almost any time. Suppose you spent thousands of dollars for doctors and prescriptions, all without success—would you try a natural herb

That was the problem that faced Mr. William Read, one of the oldest and best known residents of New Haven, Conn. After talking with a New York nurse he decided to try Matamel. Did he get results? Let Mr. Read tell you himself:

"I have been suffering with chronic kidney and bladder inflammation for 25 years. It has cost me a fortune for doctors and medicines without results. I had to give up work 10 years ago. I read about Matamel and thought I would try it. To my great surprise Matamel seemed to act wonders with me. After taking Matamel I feel 100% better. I sleep fine, eat and can take my daily exercise. In fact, I feel twenty years younger."

In commenting on the above, a doctor stated: "Matamel is not a patent medicine, but just the concentrated sap of the Maguey. I have personally seen men and women in all walks of life receive benefit from Matamel." If you have headaches—pains in back—tired feeling in the morning, lack of energy, dancing spots before the eyes, strings noises in ears or head, dizzy spells, poor appetite—coated, foamy tongue—dry, itchy skin—pins and needles—cramps—loss of sleep—frequent going to bath room—don't wait until there is no chance left to help your kidneys; at once get a package of Matamel, which already has over 300,000 users. It is dispensed here by the following druggists who recommend it highly:

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. HARVEY HUMSTON, 80

Mrs. Ellen Powers Humston, 80, wife of Harvey Humston, died Thursday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Laurel Thomas, 131 W. Main St.

A fall seven weeks ago in which she suffered a fracture of the right leg and the infirmities of age, caused her death. Her decline had been gradual since the injury.

Mrs. Humston was born near Paintersville, July 27, 1846, the daughter of Alfred and Susannah Powers, and had spent all of her life in Greene County. Her marriage to Mr. Humston took place in March, 1865, and for more than thirty years they occupied a farm south of Xenia. For the last six years both had made their home with Mrs. Thomas.

Surviving Mrs. Humston are her husband and her daughter, Mrs. Thomas, one son, Hal Humston, having died fourteen years ago. She also leaves a brother, Eli Powers, Dayton, a grandson, Glenn Humston, and a great-grandson, Robert Humston, both of Xenia.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the home after 5 o'clock Friday evening.

Mrs. Otis Wolford, 73, well known Greene County woman, died at McClellan Hospital, Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, from pneumonia and a complication of ailments.

Mrs. Wolford was removed from her home between Cedarville and Jamestown to the hospital a week ago in a serious condition and her strength continued to fail.

Mrs. Wolford, before marriage, Miss Elizabeth Brown, was the last of her immediate family and was the daughter of Nixon and Hannah Brown, who were early settlers of the vicinity between Cedarville and Jamestown. She was a sister of the late Mrs. W. P. Maden.

She leaves her husband, Otis B. Wolford, during girlhood, Mrs. Wolford became affiliated with the Friends Church.

Funeral services will be held at the home of the late Mrs. Wolford and Xenia Pike, between Cedarville and Jamestown, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in Woodland Cemetery, Xenia.

The Gallaher Drug Co., in Dayton, chain store company, has leased the room in the Schmidt Block, E. Main St., formerly occupied by the Tilton Clothing Store, and will open a cut-rate drug store in the space by June 1, it was disclosed Friday.

The drug company has already signed the lease and work has begun in remodeling the room to accommodate the store. Shelves, soda fountains and other equipment will be installed.

The Gallaher Drug Co., has for its officers: J. H. Gallaher, president; C. D. Chamberlain, vice president; J. R. Walker, secretary-treasurer and M. A. Kidd, general manager. Sixteen stores, wholesale and retail, are operated by the company in various cities of Ohio, including Dayton, Troy, Middletown and Springfield.

Bill to compensate victim approved

Governor Vic Donahey has signed a bill sponsored by State Senator William Clark, Urbana, allowing Miss Gladys Bookwalter, Bowersville, $5,000 compensation for injuries sustained when she was struck by the governor's automobile on Main St. in Springfield two years ago.

Miss Bookwalter was a resident of Mechanicsburg at the time of the accident, and was engaged in teaching school in the eastern part of Champaign County. She received severe injuries when her automobile was struck by the governor's car.

Charles Ruttner, who lives three-fourths of a mile east of Zimmerman, off the Dayton and Xenia Pike, was fined $7 and costs by J. E. Jones, justice of the peace, Thursday on a charge of harboring four unlicensed dogs.

The charge was proffered by Alonzo Edwards, county dog catcher. Edwards was refused permission to take the tagless dogs away when he made a trip to the farm home. He then swore out a warrant for Ruttner's arrest.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff George Sugden and Kenneth C. Barr, county road patrolman.

Central High School's first annual "Field Day" will be held Friday, May 20, and a complete program is being arranged.

The exercises will be held at Cox Memorial Athletic Field. Both junior and senior high students are eligible to participate in the events. Six contests are open to the boys and girls of senior high, six to the boys of junior high, and four to the junior high girls.

Coach Victor Kolb, of Central senior high, and Coach Patterson, of junior high, are in charge of details of the program.

Central High School's golf team, which has been practicing at intervals under the direction of Coach Vic Kolb, will try conclusions with Troy High golfers over the Troy golf course Saturday.

Tuesday, May 17, a return match will be played with Troy over the Xenia Country Club nine-hole course. It is announced, "This will probably be the only home match of the season."

Central is represented this year by the first golf team in the school's history and although all members of the team have had prior experience on the links, just what Xenia's fate will be against the Trojan team is a matter for conjecture.

Friday, June 7 is "Class Day" and is being looked forward to with eagerness by not only the seniors but by the entire school, since on that date the Premier Roll selections will be announced.

Class Day presents many other significant features which will be announced later as they are arranged.

ITALY CUTS WAGES TO STABILIZE LIRA

ROME, May 13.—The movement to create a new value for the lira by reducing wages and living costs is sweeping Italy.

From dozens of provinces come reports that workers have accepted voluntary reductions in wages of from five to ten per cent, these reductions being approved by the trades unions.

Merchants are cutting the prices of food stuffs and wearing materials and even landlords are reducing rents, the popular demand for lower prices to meet lower wages being accepted by those who have commodities to sell.

Ten thousand dock workers at Genoa and all railroad workers have accepted reductions in their wages, and orders for lower wages have even been extended to employees of hotels and restaurants.

Countless girls and women now know how foolish and needless it is to "purge" and "physic" themselves to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, sallow skin, colds, or sour, gassy stomach.

They have found that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate girl or woman. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious sick child gladly takes it.

LEAPS FROM WINDOW AND SAVES FAMILY

SCRANTON, Pa., May 13.—Leaping from a second story window of his home at Peckville, near here early today when he discovered the building in flames, John Darphozsky, 27, carried his wife and seven children to safety down a ladder, making eight trips despite the fact that he was badly hurt in the leap.

Darphozsky collapsed after the last trip, and was rushed to a hospital, where his condition was reported as serious. His home was destroyed by the fire.

Countless girls and women now know how foolish and needless it is to "purge" and "physic" themselves to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, sallow skin, colds, or sour, gassy stomach.

They have found that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate girl or woman. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious sick child gladly takes it.

here early today when he discovered the building in flames, John Darphozsky, 27, carried his wife and seven children to safety down a ladder, making eight trips despite the fact that he was badly hurt in the leap.

Darphozsky collapsed after the last trip, and was rushed to a hospital, where his condition was reported as serious. His home was destroyed by the fire.

STUBBORN, UN-SIGHTLY PIMPLES ON FACE AND BACK

Skin now clear and smooth

Doubs, Md., July 13.—"Three or four years ago, my face and back broke out with pimples and blackheads. When I picked or pressed them they would get very sore and burn. I used several kinds of cold cream, but none of them helped a bit. Then I happened to see your advertisement and thought I would try Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. Within a few weeks I had not a pimple or blackhead at all and now my face is nice and smooth. I have also found Resinol Soap very refreshing after coming in out of the sun or wind." (Signed) Miss Elsie E. Painter.

If you are troubled with a rough, pimply skin, ask your druggist today for Resinol Soap and Ointment, and see what an improvement a week's use will make.

FREE—Sample of each of these products if you will write Dept. 62, Baltimore, Md.

Nutrition experts give a new importance to the whole grains

Why is it that mothers are now being urged so strongly to give whole-grain foods? It is because they provide so much that is needed for normal growth in children (and radiant health in later years).

Mother's Oats, with milk, supplies a rich store of vitamins and minerals which are lacking in an ordinary highly-refined cereal.

The tender bran of the oat, so valuable for roughage, is included, too. These important factors, too often neglected, make a bowl of Mother's Oats with milk a growth food which mothers everywhere are appreciating more and more.

Children love its rich flavor and notice the smooth, even texture which results from the extra-careful way it is milled.

Two kinds—the kind you have always known or Quick (cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes). Both with coupons interchangeable with the Aunt Jemima coupons, which bring you electrical conveniences, books, toys for the children, etc.

Mother's Oats

old school girl of Fancy Farm, Graves County, is Kentucky's champion speller. Not only that, but on her slender shoulders Kentucky hangs its hope of producing a third consecutive national spelling championship winner.

Miss Ross, after capturing a $200 prize and winning the state title in the contest before the 56th annual convention of the Kentucky Educational Association in which sixty contestants took part, was entered in the national contest which is held in Washington. She is a daughter of S. T. Ross, Fancy Farm banker, and she is in the seventh grade at St. James parochial school.

Kentucky's first successful entrant in the national spelling bee, where the first prize is $1,000, was Frank Hauhauser of Louisville, who was national champion in 1925. In 1926 Miss Pauline Bell of Grayson County successfully represented the bluegrass state and it is hoped Miss Ross will have the same good fortune in the 1927 contest.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

A SOAP AND WATER BATH STIRS UP TRINKY'S WRATH

Trinky, the Ritzie mascot, could not honestly say that his lot had been much better. For a little puppy to have a tin can tied to his tail and be teased by a whole army of boys was bad enough, but to be rescued from that only to be subjected to a scrubbing with soap and water was almost equally humiliating for the little tramp dog.

Of course he had not yet become a full-fledged member of the club and didn't know what an honor it was to become the Ritzie mascot.

As Marty, Rag and Tag, the twins, and the two girls, Patsy and Betty Ann, had carried the little fox terrier triumphantly home after rescuing him from the fifth grade boys, they had busily made plans for their newly acquired mascot.

Trinky had been decided upon for a name because they had never heard of a dog called that and, of course, the Ritzie mascot couldn't have the same name as any regular dog. Of course he would have to be taught to obey, carry messages and deliver all the party invitations. That Trinky had a big future ahead of him as the Ritzie mascot was easily seen by the five club members.

They started with the first lesson as Patsy had wiped him dry from the very first bath he had ever had.

"Come, Trinky, come here Trinky," called Marty, holding up a piece of meat that he had rescued from the kitchen.

The little fox terrier sniffed the air and then trotted forward obediently. When the meat was all gone and Marty called again, Trinky only blinked, making no attempt to answer the summons.

"We can't allow Trinky to be as disobedient as that," objected Rag.

"I've got an idea," broke in Tag. "Have you got a piece of cord in the carpenter shop, Marty?"

After a half hour of work, the boys had made a temporary collar out of an old leather belt, fastened this around Trinky's neck and tied a cord to it.

Leading him into the carpenter shop, Tag started his lesson. "Here Trinky, come Trinky," he called, but the little puppy only blinked as he had done for Marty.

Calling again, Tag slowly pulled on the cord that was fastened to the dog's collar and pulled the puppy towards the lesson.

Repeating this a second time, Trinky was still reluctant, but the third time, realizing that he would be pulled if he didn't come of his own accord, the little puppy trotted forward promptly when his name was called.

Trinky had learned his first lesson, but the Ritzies had learned one, too. It would take a great deal of patience to teach the little dog. They practiced that first lesson over and over for days until Trinky would come immediately whenever one of the Ritzies called his name.

A corner of the carpenter shop, made soft and cozy with an old blanket, was given to Trinky and there he slept at night and stood guard over the little shop during the day while the Ritzies were away at school.

Teaching him to come when his name is called is the very first trick you should teach your dog and you will find it easy if you follow the method that the Ritzies used.

Tomorrow the Ritzies decide all gone and Marty called again, Trinky only blinked, making no attempt to answer the summons.

"We can't allow Trinky to be as disobedient as that," objected Rag.

MAYOR EFFECTS BIG SAVING AND SLICES CITY'S TAX RATE $5

XENIA, Mass., May 13.—The 1927 rate of Lynn was cut $5 this year. Though the proverbial five-spot may not represent much when piled alone, a neat pile accumulated when every $1,000 worth of property in the city was assessed for that amount. At least so the city fathers of other municipalities believe.

As a consequence the ability of the city of Lynn to cut its tax rate $5 drew queries of "How" from all over New England. The tax question has been of extreme importance in this section this year because of the industrial situation.

The answer to the queries received in Lynn contained but few words. They were in effect, "Mayor Bauer." In other words, to their chief executive, Ralph S. Bauer, do the people of Lynn attribute their reduction in taxes.

How it was done.

A few of the methods used by Mayor Bauer in reducing the municipal expenditures follow.

The appropriation for the assessing department was cut $3,647 by having the police do the listing of polls.

The securing of an additional load per team per day in refuse and garbage disposal and other economies cut expenses $24,000 a year in the disposal of refuse and garbage.

Thirteen thousand dollars was cut from the cost of street cleaning by not carrying on the permanent payroll from January to May, 179 men who had previously been retained through the winter although they worked only during snowstorms.

By increasing stable expense $3,000, the city could use its own teams instead of hiring them at $10 a day.

The street department cut $5,000 from the cost of maintenance of streets and sidewalks, and $5,000 from the upkeep of equipment.

The city stone crushers had been furnishing stone at $2.60 a ton. When it was found crushed market for $1.70 a ton the stone crusher was shut down and the saving amounted to $5,867.88.

Saving On Oil

About one fifth of the oil formerly used in street oiling was found sufficient for this purpose, and along with a reduction in the cost per gallon, a saving of $10,000 was effected.

A revision of the lists of those receiving aid from the Poor Department and the requirement that everyone receiving aid make a new application, saved the city $29,500.

Eighty thousand dollars was cut from school expenses.

The water board saved $10,000 by requiring land owners to pay the entire cost of extensions of mains over the private ways and $5,000 in the supply item.

A personal inspection by the Mayor after a heavy storm showed that a patrol of the reservoir grounds which was supposed to be made was not made, although pay therefore was being received, the untrodden snow exposing the failure to perform.

By combining all the coal contracts for the several city departments into one, $4 a ton was saved on coal. The same principle was applied to the purchase of gasoline for city owned cars.

BATH TWP. FARMER GUILTY SAYS JURY

Daniel Lang, wealthy Bath Twp. farmer, was convicted of a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act by the federal court petit jury in Dayton Thursday, after a deliberation of two hours and fifteen minutes.

Returning of this verdict brought the petit jury's duties to an end until Monday, when it will convene to consider what are said to be some of the more important indictments of the grand jury.

Lang was arrested in Greene County by Sidney Cornelius, constable of Bath Twp. His trial was a lengthy one. The court deferred sentence.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Philip Wynne Tracy IV returns home very late one night and tells his mother he is engaged to Natalie Jones and hopes to marry her before leaving for college.

Mr. Jones, who is the Tracy's milkman, objects to Philip quite as much as Mrs. Tracy objects to Natalie.

Philip's mother unconsciously interests her son in Lydia Hilliard, an old friend of hers who is coming to visit her and will stay at her house over a party she is going to give for Philip. Without his mother's knowledge Phil plans to bring Natalie to the party through his friend, Rodney Maxwell. Natalie decides to go because she thinks Phil wants her to.

Meantime Philip meets Mrs. Hilliard at the train and takes her to luncheon. He finds that she has fallen in love at first sight with this woman much older than himself and hopes that Natalie will not come to the party after all.

After the first kiss on a midnight ride Philip only lives when he is with Mrs. Hilliard, and asks her if she will go driving again after the party. Natalie surprises every one by coming to the party.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XIV

RODNEY MAXWELL BLUNDERS.

"You see, Mrs. Tracy, I've brought her!" Rodney Maxwell exultantly exclaimed as he pushed Natalie forward.

Phil felt his heart stop beating as he saw his mother visibly freeze up. But the girl standing in front of Mrs. Tracy was so exquisitely beautiful and so palpably innocent of any wrong-doing that she could not punish her for what she at once decided was her son's reprehensible conduct.

"It's just one of the things his father would have done, expecting to carry it off with a high hand," she thought bitterly. Then her good breeding came to her aid and with only a second perceptible hesitation she said: "Yes, Rod, I see you have brought Natalie."

This speech seemed to surprise the girl. She grew a little paler. It was as if she were asking herself could she have been mistaken—did Mrs. Tracy really invite her? Then she threw up her hands in a gesture of surprise and said: "You see, Mrs. Tracy, when Rod brought me your message I was at first heart-broken because I thought it would be impossible for me to come, but Aunt Julia, to whom I told my story and who knew that father would refuse if I asked permission to come to Phil's party, said that I might come and stay there with her all night. It has made me very happy."

"There, I told you it was all right," blundered Rodney Maxwell.

Philip raised his face, intending to convey the fact to Rodney that if he opened his lips again he would blacken his eye right after the party was over.

But Rod had moved from where he expected to find him and his eyes met and clashed with those of Natalie Jones.

Here were like eyes he had never seen before—they had lost their lapis lazuli tint and had the effect of cold blue steel. He had to acknowledge that she was beautiful—more beautiful than he had ever seen her. Her white dress hid below her left ear with a couple more gardenias. There was not a particle of color about her except her extraordinary pale gold hair which was swathed about her small head like a cap and pinned at the side.

On her flat, white, young breast just where it so fitly met the low neck of her bodice gleamed a lovely pearl suspended from a thin gold chain.

"Some pearl for the milkman's daughter," whispered Luella Carr. "Bad taste, don't you think, to wear such a flagrant imitation when she might have known that Phil's mother would bring out all her real diamonds?"

"Why are you so sure of that?" asked Bernice Cameron.

"Surely, you can see," answered Luella, "that Phil is in the market place. We are asked here to see how we like his wares. Personally, I don't think he is any great bargain even with all his mother's jewelry. The Tracy men have never made good husbands."

"Gosh, Lou, have you got us all hooked as matrimonial prospects?" Luella Carr blushed and kindly Bernice Cameron to cover it said: "Natalie's pearl is not an imitation."

"Don't do that, Wynne!" she commanded.

tion, Luella. It is real. Her aunt must have given it to her. I remember my mother saying that a very wealthy Japanese ambassador fell in love with her one winter while she was at Washington and wanted to marry her. Of course, her brother was furious, although I notice, however, he let her accept the $20,000 pearl."

"Some romance, I should say," said Jerry.

"Oh, I don't know," commented Luella. "I don't think I would consider it romantic if a Chinaman would fall in love with me."

"But I think you would appreciate the romance of the gift of a $20,000 pearl, Lou," said Jerry.

Philip, whose car had been distracted by the gossip comments of his friends, now bent forward to hear what Natalie was saying.

"It was very sweet of you, Mrs. Tracy, to think of me and I want to tell you how I appreciate it right now for fear I won't get another chance. The plan by which you were able to ignore my father was masterly."

Phil this time caught his mother's eye—and he wished he hadn't. She looked again at Natalie and met with only the most innocent smile. She had to acknowledge to herself the girl was quite as clever as she was beautiful.

Here Rod blundered again: "That is what I said to Natalie—I told her that I knew you had sent the message for neither Phil nor I were clever enough to have made it up."

"At least you could not have done so, Rod," ventured Natalie with a smile.

Mrs. Tracy seemed to think that this verbal skirmishing had gone far enough and she looked around and gathered her guests up with her eyes. "If we are all here we might as well go on the Plaza."

"How many cars have we got here, fellows?" asked Phil.

"I can take six in the limousine," said Lucia. "Will you come, Luella, and you, Claire?" And then with Jerry, Pierce and Jack will fill it."

"Splendid," said Mrs. Tracy. "Rodney and Lydia, Bernice and William can go with me—and you, Philip, can bring Natalie in your roadster."

"Tally one for Mother," said Phil to himself even while he booted in side.

He knew that his mother had noticed that Natalie hadn't spoken to him since she came in and she was taking this way of getting even with him for the trick he had played upon her. Well, he wouldn't give her the satisfaction of letting her know she had scored.

"Come on, Natalie," he said, catching up her white velvet evening coat with its white fox collar.

She allowed him to put it on her without speaking.

He let the others get off first and then as he helped her into his car he said: "Do you know you have not spoken to me tonight, Natalie?"

"I waited until I could have time and place to say what was coming to you."

"In meantime may I say that you have never looked so sweet as you do tonight?"

LOOK here, Wynne, you cannot lead me off in that way. I know I am looking well, but I didn't do it now.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

More is coming. The party is not over yet and Mrs. Tracy has other plans. They will be related tomorrow.

THREE SHIPS READY

"Human Meteor" Seems
Most Spectacular
Of Aviators

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 13.—Capt. Charles Nungesser and Capt. Francois Coli still missing and no trace of their airplane discovered by searching ships, final plans were made at the Curtiss and Roosevelt flying fields today for an attempted non-stop flight from New York to Paris over practically the same route that the ill-fated French airmen planned to follow.

Aviators Lloyd Bertaud and Clarence Chamberlin had hoped to be able to hop off this morning in their big Bellanca machine, the "Columbia," but reports of weather conditions over the Atlantic were so unfavorable that they decided to wait. They are hopeful of getting away tonight or tomorrow.

Capt. Charles Lindbergh, the "human meteor," who nonchalantly flew 2,500 miles from San Diego, Calif., to Curtiss flying field in twenty-one hours and twenty minutes, is all set to hop off in his monoplane alone. He may leave any time. He is not operating on set schedule.

Lindbergh is the most spectacular of the airmen who will attempt the long journey to the French capital. Only twenty-five years old, he has escaped death by a hair's breadth half a dozen times.

The third plane groomed for the sensational trans-Atlantic trip is a gigantic Pockler called the "America." This machine, which is equipped with three powerful motors, will be in command of Commander Richard E. Byrd, hero of the North Pole flight. This machine reached Roosevelt flying field late yesterday just after Lindbergh's monoplane had swooped to earth on the Curtiss field.

The "America" is still being groomed and tuned up by mechanics, but Commander Byrd said he is ready to start at any time. He may get away within forty-eight hours if weather conditions are favorable.

"Lucky" Lindbergh, as his fellow airmen call him, is not making any great preparations for the big hop. He overhauled his monoplane to see that the mechanism was working smoothly and tested the gear, but is not doing much in the way of securing personal comforts.

It does not even know if I will take any hot coffee supply," said the young dare devil of the skies. "I will want some sandwiches and plenty of drinking water, but I don't think I will be long enough on the way to suffer very much from hunger. I am going to be busy watching the board."

Lindbergh referred to the instrument board in front of the pilot's seat. The array of shining instruments attached to this item of equipment is an imposing one. They include a temperature gauge, oil pressure gauge, tachometer, altimeter, turn and bank indicator, speed timer, earth inductor compass and a time clock. In addition there is the lower end of a periscope for the machine is so built that the pilot from his low cockpit can look only out the side windows. He must use the periscope to look ahead.

Lindbergh will fly for the $25,000 prize offered by Raymond Orteig for a successful non-stop flight between New York and Paris. Bertaud, Chamberlin and Byrd were not formally entered in the contest for the prize, and therefore not eligible according to the rules of the aeronautical association.

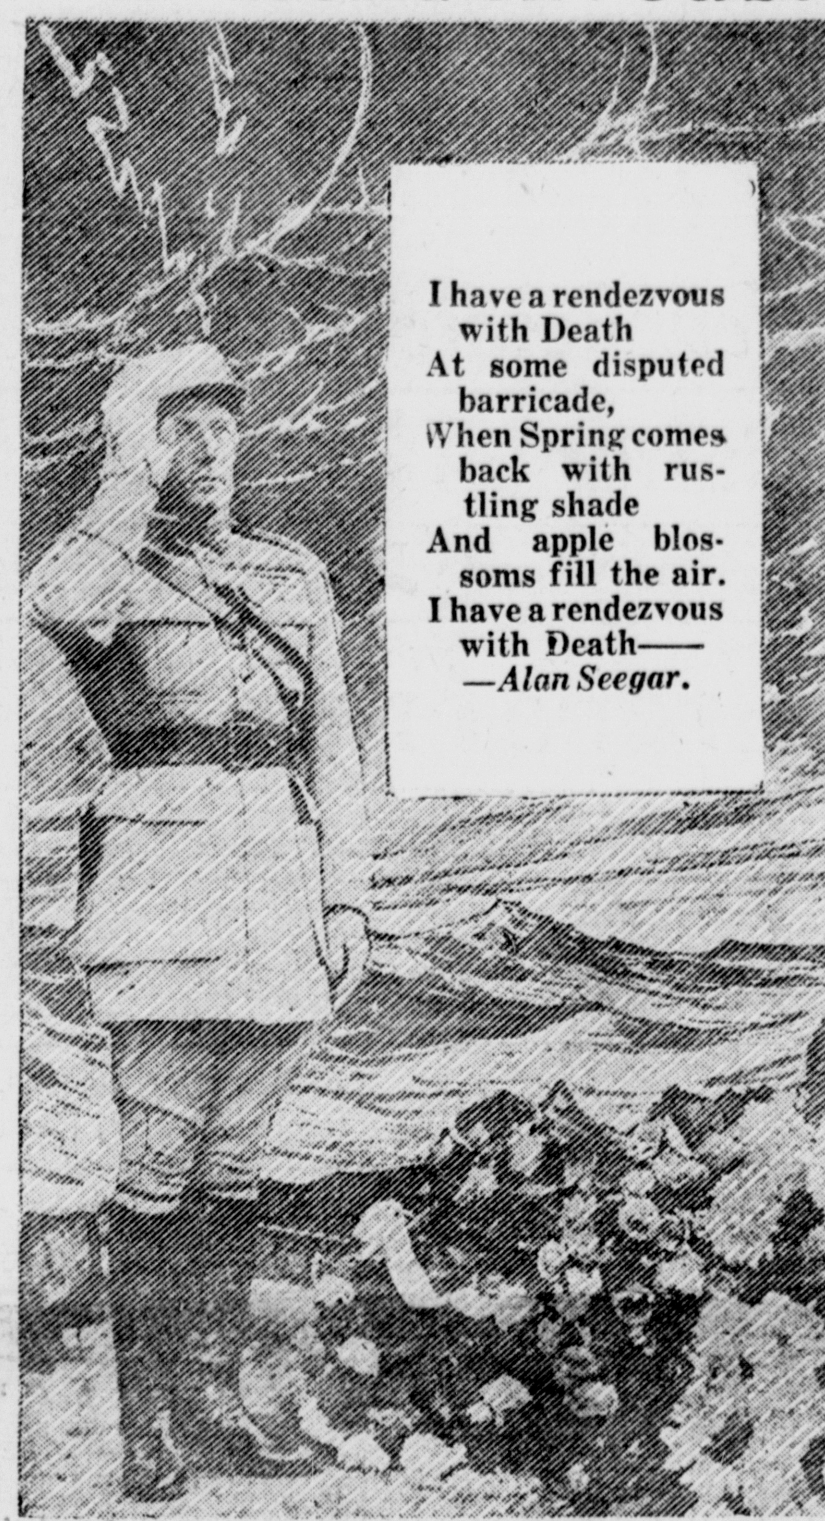

Lindbergh entered formally in the competition for the $125,000 prize in advance of start. This was one of the conditions.

Reports from the western zone of the Atlantic stated that high winds were stirring up a rough sea.

The hop across the Atlantic holds no great thrill for Lindbergh. "I know it's a great pan of water, but I don't see why such a fuss would be made over it. I am going to look upon it as though it were my regular mail run from St. Louis to Chicago," he said.

STAGE TRAGEDIENNE LAYS BARE LOVE SECRETS IN MURDER CASE

Dorothy Mackaye Risks Incrimination To Epose
Dorothy Mackaye Risks Incrimination To Epose
Slayer Of Her Husband

LOS ANGELES, May 13.—Love secrets of an actress lay bare today as Dorothy Mackaye, stage tragedienne, prepared to return to the witness stand at the murder trial of Paul Kelly to tell more of her intimate associations with the young screen hero.

At the risk of self-incrimination, she has volunteered to tell all she knows of the events which led to the tragic death of her husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy actor. Raymond, the state charges, died from a blow dealt by the strapping Kelly.

While the impetuous film lover makes open declaration of his devotion to Miss Mackaye, the prosecution will seek to establish a love motive for the alleged murder by documentary evidence. This was indicated today when the district attorney's office promised that a batch of Kelly's letters, said to be couched in endearing terms, and addressed to Miss Mackaye, would be read in court while the actress is on the stand.

Raymond's widow testified she had visited Kelly's apartment while her husband was on a theatrical tour.

"You were there together alone

many times?" the prosecutor insisted.

"Yes, sir," she whispered. Ethel Lee, negro maid in the Raymond household, who previously testified Miss Mackaye spent "many nights" away from home, was recalled to identify a photograph of Raymond in a "strong man" pose.

"Mr. Raymond wasn't in that good condition," she explained as she studied the pictured muscled. "He wasn't as heavy as that."

PROTEST SAYS RAID VIOLATES BRITISH AGREEMENT OF 1921

Allege Police Found Valuable Papers Of Government

LONDON, May 13.—Formal protest against the police raids on Arcos, Ltd., headquarters of the soviet trading organization in London, was made today by Russian charge Rosengoltz.

The Russian charge called on Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister, this afternoon and registered a diplomatic protest against the action of the police. It is understood that the protest was based on the fact that the official soviet trade delegation has diplomatic immunity.

There appeared to be little chance of the British government backing down on the action taken by the police and a rupture of the Anglo-Russian trade agreement is expected to follow.

Meanwhile scores of policemen, some of them armed, remained in possession of Soviet house, headquarters of the Soviet Russian trade delegation, which was raided yesterday.

The exact object of the raid is still unexplained in official circles, although it is believed the police are searching for evidence of organized propaganda against the British government.

Belief exists that the raid will result in the breaking off of British relations with Moscow.

It was reported that the home office had received information leading home Secretary Sir William Joynson Hicks to believe that officials of Arcos, Ltd., were in possession of British state documents which should not be out of the hands of the British government.

When the police entered one room during the night they saw a number of documents burning. They made haste to put out the flames, and are thought to have rescued the most important parts of the papers.

As soon as commons convened the raid was made the subject of a government interpellation by Arthur Henderson, a laborite member. Henderson asked the home secretary to explain the purpose of the raid.

The home secretary replied that the home office had authorized the raid on information from the police, adding that he would be unable to give further information for a day or two.

Employees of Arcos, Ltd., were permitted to enter this morning upon showing their identity cards, but no others were admitted. Telephone service was suspended.

A police guard has been placed over the private radio apparatus maintained by the Russians.

At the foreign office it was stated that Arcos, Ltd., is a private trading organization and has no diplomatic immunity, and the only possible grounds of protest was that possibly some of the room occupied by the Soviet trade delegation, which has diplomatic immunity, were entered by the police.

The Russian charge delivered a formal note of protest to Sir Austen, charging that the raids on the Arcos building constitute a violation of the obligations assumed by the British government under the trade agreement of 1921.

Possibility That Flyers May Have Collided With
Mountain In Labrador Entertained—St. John's Clue Probed.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The possibility that Capt. Charles Nungesser and Capt. Francois Coli, transoceanic fliers, may be struggling to find their way to civilization from the wilds of Labrador or Newfoundland continued to occupy the attention of army and navy aviation experts here today.

Despite the sharp lookouts maintained at sea, officials base their chief hopes, as from the first, on the possibility that the fliers reached land far north of their proposed course.

The remarkable escape of Major Frederick Martin, army round-the-world flier, was pointed to by navy experts. Maj. Martin crashed in to the side of a mountain in Alaskan territory and finally was rescued. The French fliers, it was said, might have run into a mountain in Labrador.

SCHOOL CHILDREN CALLED TO LEVEE DEFENSE AS MEN FAIL

Exhausted Defenders Continue Battle To Check
Flood—Coast Guard Hurries To Scene
Of Cottonport Break

BATON ROUGE, La., May 13.—School children of Morganza were thrown into the front line of levee defense today along the Mississippi. The city of Cottonport was under three feet of water. Reports to relief headquarters here were that the opening likely could not widen fast enough to prevent a larger break in the Bayou levees to the east.

Cottonport is at the extreme western edge of the Louisiana area flooded from the north. Overnight studies of the topography convinced engineers that the volume of water released there would not be sufficient to relieve the eastern stretches of the levees where with the water already washing over at several points, the menacing surface still rises hourly. Pointe Coupee parish, with an area of 526 square miles and a population of 25,000, would be almost entirely inundated by a break at Morganza, according to reports to relief headquarters.

The parish, a waterlocked triangle with the apex fitted into a ten mile bayou which forms the confluence of the Black, the Old, the Atchafalaya and the Mississippi on the east. Its Mississippi levee had been regarded as in good condition and the evacuation order of a week ago which warned of danger in parishes west of the Atchafalaya did not embrace any but the extreme northern portion of Pointe Coupee.

Half an hour after the Cottonport break, coast guard cutters with long bows of eighteen-men flat bottom skiffs were at the scene taking on these immediately behind the crevasse. Many through-out adjoining parishes who had refused to heed the evacuation orders were moved to preparations by the news of the break.

TAFT SCORES DELAY IN CRIMINAL COURTS

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The legal profession has too many members who delay the effective operation of criminal law, according to Chief Justice Wm. Howard Taft of the U. S. Supreme Court. "No lover of his country can have gone through the last four years without being stirred over the failure of the administration of our criminal law," said the Chief Justice, addressing the American Law Institute. "We love our profession, but we know we have them," referring to those lawyers who are experts in delay.

NEVADA BEGINS MORATORIUM AS REMEDY FOR BIG EMBEZZLEMENT FROM STATE

RENO, Nev., May 13.—With half a million dollars missing from the state treasury, Nevada today began a five-day moratorium, during which all financial activity of the state government will be halted.

Governor Balzar declared the moratorium upon completion of an audit of the books of State Treasurer Ed Malley. Malley, with former State Controller George Cole and E. W. Clapp, former cashier of the Carson Valley bank, is accused of embezzling $516,000.

The state treasurer, however, contends the huge shortage is in the books of the Carson valley bank and not in the state ledgers. By an adroit maneuver Malley ended the state and the bank on the defensive. He appeared at the bank presenting cashier's checks totalling well over half a million dollars and demanding payments. The bank refused to honor payment.

Malley thereby is said to have placed the state and the bank on of proving the checks fraudulent. Furthermore, it was said, the bank now will be forced to take legal action independent of the state prosecution.

STREITENBERGER TO TESTIFY AT CANTON IN MURDER DEFENSE

Neighbors Of Former Detective Heard In Defense Effort

CANTON, O., May 13.—Concentrating upon attempts to destroy what the state characterized as strong evidence against Floyd Streitenberger, former Canton city detective, on trial for first degree murder, in connection with the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, here last July 16, the defense today was to call Canton's ex-chief of police, Seranus A. Lengel, to the stand in an effort to refute testimony of Louis Mazer, jointly indicted for the murder, and the state's star witness.

Mazer testified that the plot against the young newspaperman was "hatched under the roof of police headquarters."

Streitenberger himself will take the witness chair, according to present plans, following which the defense will probably rest.

The state closed its case late Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Craft, neighbors of Streitenberger, were early defense witnesses. They told of visiting the Streitenberger home the night of July 15—the night preceding the Mellett slaying. According to their story, Streitenberger came home about 11:30 p. m. and invited them to come over. They accepted and Mrs. Craft said she noticed a man sitting in an automobile in front of the house. (Louis Mazer's first story was to the effect that this was his car and that he was the occupant.)

None of the relatives of the condemned pair was in the courtroom. Mrs. Snyder's mother remained in the Snyder home at Queens village where Snyder was beaten to death with an iron sashweight on the morning of March 20 as he slept. Gray's mother, who had attended the trial, also remained at home but she plans to visit her son in the prison tomorrow.

The jurors who convicted the couple were in their seats in the jury box as sentence was pronounced, although Hazelton had requested that they be excluded during the proceedings.

When Gray was asked if he had anything to say, Millard spoke for him at once saying, "No."

PRISONERS LISTEN CALMLY AS JUSTICE PRONOUNCES DOOM

Couple Will Remain In
Queens Jail For
Farewells

COURTHOUSE, Long Island City, N. Y., May 13.—Ruth Brown Snyder and her one-time sweetheart, Henry Judd Gray, were sentenced today to die in the electric chair in Sing Sing the week of June 20.

In the same court room where they were found guilty of the sashweight murder of Albert Snyder, the art editor who "didn't understand" his sprightly blonde wife, sentence was imposed upon them by Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder.

Doom of the convicted couple was pronounced on "Friday the thirteenth" and the terrifying significance of the sentence was accentuated by the slow, sonorous tones of the judge as he pronounced it.

Mrs. Snyder was sentenced first. She heard the fateful words calmly without any outward show of emotion. She wore the same black coat, black hat and jet beads which she wore throughout the trial. Before coming into court, she showed her vanity by washing and arranging her hair and polishing her nails.

She stood before the judge's bench between two prison matrons. John Moran, clerk of court, turned to her and asked:

"Have you anything to say before sentence of this court is passed upon you?"

She did not reply but turned to Edgar F. Hazelton, her attorney, who stood nearby.

"The defendant Snyder has already said why sentence should not be passed upon her and has nothing further to say at this time," said Hazelton.

Justice Scudder then intoned the formula which sentenced Mrs. Snyder to solitary confinement until she is "done to death at Sing Sing prison the week beginning June 20 next."

Mrs. Snyder looked directly at Justice Scudder as he pronounced the sentence. There was a gleam of the old defiance in her green-blue eyes and her lips were tightly compressed.

Gray then was sentenced. He walked before the bar of justice, head up, shoulders squared. He, too, accepted the verdict calmly, although a flush mantled his dark face.

The convicted couple, however, will not be taken to the death house at Sing Sing immediately, as planned. Justice Scudder granted the request of their counsel that they be permitted to remain in Queens County jail until Monday to wind up their affairs and pay their farewells to relatives.

Mrs. Snyder's and Gray's last public appearance was before another crowded courtroom, fully five hundred persons jamming every available bit of space to see the final act in this great drama. All the spectators remained on their feet while the sentence was given. The judge was extremely grave in his demeanor.

Justice Scudder took the bench shortly after 10 o'clock. A moment later Mrs. Snyder, flanked by two matrons walked rapidly into the courtroom. Gray, also guarded, followed almost immediately.

They stood about four feet apart in front of the judge's bench as they received sentence. They did not glance at each other.

Before Justice Scudder imposed sentence, Attorney Hazelton made a number of motions, including one asking that the verdict be set aside, but all of them were denied. Similar motions were made in behalf of Gray by his attorney, William J. Millard, but they, too, were denied.

None of the relatives of the condemned pair was in the courtroom. Mrs. Snyder's mother remained in the Snyder home at Queens village where Snyder was beaten to death with an iron sashweight on the morning of March 20 as he slept. Gray's mother, who had attended the trial, also remained at home but she plans to visit her son in the prison tomorrow.

The jurors who convicted the couple were in their seats in the jury box as sentence was pronounced, although Hazelton had requested that they be excluded during the proceedings.

When Gray was asked if he had anything to say, Millard spoke for him at once saying, "No."

The spectators, sensing the solemnity of the occasion, maintained absolute silence as sentence was intoned.

The proceedings were over quickly. As the judge finished his fateful words, there was a moment of hesitation. Then Attorney Millard turned to Gray and whispered:

"Keep up your hope."

The dapper little corset salesman smiled warmly.

FOREIGNERS COMPETE FOR DIRIGIBLE PRIZE

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Foreign airship builders will compete with Americans for the $50,000 prize offered for the successful design of the huge non dirigible to be built for the navy, it was learned today.

"I understand that both German and Dutch designers will submit plans, and it is probable that other foreigners will enter the competition," said C. P. Burgess, the navy's civilian expert in airship design.

No prejudice will be shown to foreign designers, it was indicated by naval officers, although the congressional act authorizing the airship requires that it be built in the United States.

Because the airship—two and a half times as large as the Los Angeles in cubic feet capacity—will be the greatest ever built, the navy offered a large prize to bring the best brains of the world to its aid.

All designs must be forwarded to the navy department by next Monday midnight. The special board of which rear-admiral Moffett, chief of the air service, will be senior member, will convene on

WITH ONLY TWO YEARS OF EXPERIENCE "BUDDY" ROGERS, A COUNTRY BOY FROM KANSAS, HAS BEEN CHOSEN BY MARY PICKFORD TO PLAY OPPOSITE HER IN HER NEW PICTURE. HERE ARE MARY AND BUDDY. WHAT'S YOUR OPINION OF HER JUDGMENT?

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927
OLATHE, Kas., May 12.—He was just a simple country boy two years ago, and now he's to be Mary Pickford's leading man. His name, soon to appear beside "Our Mary's," is Buddy Rogers. His parents attached to him the more dignified cognomen, Charles, but since his high school days he has been "Buddy" and the nickname sticks.

Rogers wrote to his proud parents in Olathe the other day, a letter brimming with pride and delight, containing the word that he had been chosen by Mary Pickford to play the lead in her new picture. That letter marks the pinnacle of a career such as tens of thousands of youngsters have yearned for in every city, town and village in the land. Buddy Rogers has done what Merton of the Movies longed to accomplish, and he has done it without any of the bitter experiences which Harry Leon Wilson's hero was called upon to endure.

Rogers' motion picture ambitions burned within him during his school years. There is nothing unusual in that. But, having

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught the children, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 509 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it. Are you on the Sunlit Road to better health?

AN OUTDOOR CLUB

A new type of club has been organized in Ashtabula, O. It is the Outdoor Club, established by 100 residents of that city. They have dammed a small river and formed a 13-acre lake for fishing, boating and swimming. They have purchased a 1200-acre tract of land which is to be preserved for members and their children as a great playground.

Members drew choices for lots in the club preserve and are allowed to do whatever they want—within certain restrictions—on their own lots. One family, for example, may have a log cabin; another may go in for a miniature forest preserve. One member says he has 18 different varieties of native trees growing in his 40 by 80 "forest."

There will be children's playgrounds, facilities for boating, swimming, trap-shooting, rifle practice, fishing, tennis, baseball and just about everything except golf.

Golf is omitted simply because the members have other opportunities to play that game at near-by country or golf clubs. The Outdoor Club is to meet hitherto unfilled needs. It is much like a great park, privately owned and controlled by a group of citizens who appreciate outdoor life and want to get it close to their homes.

REFUSING TO LIMIT ARMS

"Arms serve Italy, not for combating the world, but for living in the world," says Giacomo Martignone, Fascist journalist.

Mr. Martignone makes this statement in explaining some of the reasons behind Premier Mussolini's refusal to participate in President Coolidge's suggested conference on limitation of naval armament.

"Disarmament cannot be obtained by determining the relations of equality between the forces of the military, the air and the naval fleets," says Mr. Martignone. "It is impossible to consider all the factors of the military force of a nation, with its geographical position, its economic power, and its ability to transform every energy into military activity in times of war."

He continues: "Propositions for the naval fleet at the present time do not interest Italy. First of all, our construction—at least 300,000,000 lire ($13,000,000) has been appropriated for the purpose of naval defense—cannot be reduced without alarming prejudice to the country's defense, surrounded as she is by seas and by oceans, situated as she is in the heart of the Mediterranean like a landing dock. Italy derives power, and at the same time is weak, from this strategic but dangerous position, and all around her are the natural battlefields of the European nations."

"To suppose that Italian Fascism is seeking war is a mistake; but in order to avoid it Italy feels that she must be prepared to be a proper fighting force, and to have a proper naval equipment for complete defense."

"Possibly a tragedy awaits us, but we cannot stop. Our people cannot emigrate; we are compressed within a peninsula where the natural resources are not sufficient for our growing population; and for the eventualities of the future Italy feels that her people must be prepared. She cannot face the idea of a limited navy."

Just why Italy cannot limit her armaments if other nations do, Mr. Martignone does not say.

PRESENT UPHEAVAL DIFFERS

Today two forces are operating in China, says Frank H. Simonds in the Review of Reviews, which serve to make the present upheaval different to a degree from other uprisings that have been a familiar detail in Chinese history for almost innumerable centuries. These two forces represent, first, the activities of the Young Chinese, who have been trained largely in American schools and colleges, but in a lesser degree in European; secondly, the agents of the Russian Soviet, who have found in Chinese unrest a fruitful field for their propaganda.

At the bottom of the activities of the Young Chinese, is the determination to expel the West from all political power in Chinese territory and to repeat in China the blessings of western democratic rule. The Soviet purpose is different. While the Bolsheviks would naturally welcome any chance to establish their ideas in China, their main purpose is to exploit Chinese conditions to the disadvantage of all western and capitalistic states. And Great Britain, beyond all other countries, is the target of Russian effort.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

By Marjorie K. Rawlings

"Me and mine" seem best to me, And my own way of living, With my own notions I agree, My own mistakes forgiving.

"Me and mine" are sacred soil, With only virtues growing, Where I exalt my common toil And see it fine and glowing.

"You and yours" seem best to you; Your life, your house, your garden; Your errors and your sins are few, And these, those, to pardon.

If I exchanged my ways with yours, My life, my hallowed ground, We should feel and think, of course, The other way around!

How to Achieve Beauty

THE MOBILE MOUTH

Today, in further considering the essentials which make for mouth beauty, I want you to realize the importance of keeping the lips firmly rounded.

And, in connection with keeping the mouth, and for that matter the entire exterior of the face, the most important thing to remember is to have the corners of your mouth turned up and not down.

The surest way to keep the corners of the mouth turned upward is to smile often. The frequent smile is a real face lifter of the natural sort and can do more to keep your contour youthful than the most able beauty surgeon.

Smiles actually lift the muscles of the face and if you cultivate a ready smile and the happy expression that goes with it, you will most assuredly be doing something really worth while for your beauty.

The next essential toward making the mouth mobile is to keep the lips soft and pliable, by the manner in which you handle your lips, tongue and teeth when talking. Clear enunciation and proper articulation of your words will do much to make your mouth expressive. I have often seen an otherwise plain face really made beautiful because it possessed a pleasingly expressive mouth.

I think it is the duty of every woman who takes pride in her good looks and who realizes what an important part her mouth plays in connection with her beauty to give serious thought to the underlying fundamentals that result in possession of a mobile mouth.

And I hope any woman who reads this article today and who is aware that her manner of speech is such that it detracts from the beauty of her mouth will make haste to study the fundamentals of proper diction, because the best way I know of to cultivate a mobile expression of the lips is to follow some of the underlying rules which are taught in the study of correct diction.

Diction is really a large and complete subject within itself and my time and space today is too limited to permit me to go into it in any detail, but I simply want to impress upon you the importance of going in seriously for the study of diction, if you feel your manner of speech is not up to the mark. Correct diction not only has an important bearing on the shape of the lips and mouth, but also upon the entire posture and carriage of the body, for it inspires self-confidence.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, May 13.—The first electric sign on Broadway graced a roof top at Thirty-eighth St. It represented a chariot race. The chariot and horses took up three-quarters of the sign and the rest was advertising. It wasn't altogether a success. Pedestrians stood gaping at the interminable race, in no way associating it with the product it was designed to stamp on the mind of the multitude.

Advance has been made since then in the art of incandescent exploitation, but the advertisers have been so greedy in the way they've plastered every available house front and roof top along Broadway and its environs with their blazing messages that the eyes of the beholders blink in protest at the blinding display.

When the sun drops down behind the Jersey hills, twilight comes stealing along Edison Alley and New York starts its nightly slide toward hell, there bursts upon the tortured vision a wild intermarriage of blazing tone represented by 25,000,000 candle-power concentrated in 1,243,538 incandescent lamps, the reflection from which blots out the twinkling stars staining the sable skies a dull, sickly saffron.

The signs are so varied, weird, extraordinary and so closely grouped that after five minutes of puzzled contemplation the bewildered pedestrian isn't sure whether he's been commanded to grease his pan cakes with Smith's shoe polish or try Eskimo ginger ale on the piano legs.

A movement is under way to minimize this confusion of blazing bulbs. With every new building going up in the neighborhood, the electric advertising men are conferring with the architects in an endeavor to fit their electric messages with some effectiveness into the general scene. Whether they will succeed and eventually bring about relief to the pedestrian's tortured vision, is matter for conjecture.

Having advertised everything the well-dressed man, woman, child chauffeur, nurse-maid, and flunky will wear, one of the leading Salons ends its daily full-page claim to attention in a leading morning journal with the injunction: "And don't forget the dog's new spring outfit!"

You can get no better slant on the ads and thought of a town than by studying the advertisements in the newspapers.

By their ads you shall know them. It is doubtless a fact that the large department stores in New York keep the bigwig morning and evening papers going. All anyone who doubts this has to do is to glance over a forty-five-page morning

Motion picture actors are taking long location trips these days. The latest exodus, which caused quite a gap in the film colony, occurred when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer chartered a special train of 14 cars to take a company to Colorado to film a picture which will portray the famous Alaska gold rush over Chilkoot pass.

Plenty of dogs will appear in the picture. Seventy-five teams of Alaska huskies will be sent to Colorado and their ranks will be augmented by two carloads of mongrels which will be shipped in from Denver, Kansas City and other points.

More than 3,000 people will appear in the picture. Special trains will be run between Denver and Corona each day in order to carry extras to and from their work.

Anna Q. Nilsson believes she would be a capable casting director for "Babe" Ruth. New York Yankee outfielder, who recently astonished Hollywood by his histrionic abilities. There are those who have been unkind enough to say the "Babe" would be right at home in the midst of a rough house comedy, but Miss Nilsson is not one of those.

"The place in pictures for Babe Ruth," she said, "is that of a big, kindly, romantic character-comedian." If the Sultan of Swat ever being newspaper with thirty-five pages devoted to advertising, and draw his own conclusions.

The department store merchants know their clientele and they don't spend good money for white space in the newspapers indulging wild fancies and goldbordered dreams.

That's why the study of newspaper advertisements is profitable and diverting to the chronicler who notes the passing show from his camp chair under the striped umbrella on the sidewalks.

That's why, for example, the following department store ad that appeared the other morning is enlightening:

"Sale of 15,000 books—23c—41c—58c. Essays to dream over. Philosophy to ponder over. Humor to chuckle over. Economics to dig through. Books on nursing, farming, design, health, spiritualism and politics. Thrilling travel books. Delightful juvenile books. DECORATIVELY BOUND! Colorful bindings—flaming cerise, peacock blue, eggplant purple—THAT ARE WORTH THE PRICE FOR DECORATIVE REASONS ALONE! 'COME! SEE! BROWSE! BUY!'

Rich? You've Chance as a Flicker Star

A. Barton Hepburn, worth $20,000,000, is the latest recruit of the movies. Because he's rich, it's expected he'll bear up under movie wages better than most new actors do.

By CARLY MILLARD
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. (I-N Special).—The day of the poor boy or girl who rises to fame and fortune in the movies may be over. For fortune may become the trade of the rich.

David Wark Griffith has advanced the suggestion that only persons who have been used to wealth since childhood are able to maintain their personalities in the face of movie salaries.

Griffith has just placed A. Barton Hepburn, heir of the late president of the Chase National Bank, of New York, under contract. Hepburn is possessor of a $20,000,000 fortune and owes his smile to the curve of the silver spoon that was in his mouth on his natal day.

Should Hepburn be a success, it would bode no good for Little Mary Jimjam, of Concord, Ia., who has curls just like Mary Pickford, or Tommy Slayson, of West Bend, Mo., who, as you may not have heard, is a dead ringer for Lon Chaney.

It will be the Vanderbilts and Astors who will follow the footsteps of Hepburn and Julia Hoyt, the first member of the 400 to become a film actress.

It will be a reversal of form, because most of the present movie stars started as poor girls. Those that didn't started as poor boys. Still, some directors think it may be all for the best. Many, as Griffith seems to think, are not able to bear up under affluence. Hollywood's wilderness is often attributed to those who, having big money for the first time, can think of nothing but swatting a wide cut.

Keeping HEALTHY
by Dr. A. F. CurrierPUBLIC ATTENTION TO MENTAL HYGIENE

A few years ago, when Clifford Beers published his remarkable book entitled: "The Mind That Found Itself," in which he narrated his experiences while an inmate of various institutions for the insane (experiences which were happily followed by complete recovery), the attention of many people, medical, clerical, legal, in fact, thinking people in all walks of life, was turned, for the first time in this country, in a collective and definite manner to the importance of training the mind in those matters which would tend to produce healthy functioning, keep the mental forces in equilibrium, and incidentally prevent a great many people from spending more or less of their life in a mental asylum.

This germ has been most prolific in its fruitage; it has led to the formation of a national committee for Mental Hygiene, state and local organizations throughout the country, and has also crossed the ocean to various countries in Europe.

Colleges throughout the world have established professorships and lectureships on this subject, and clinics for the treatment of those who were in need of help along the lines comprehended by mental hygiene have been instituted in a great many places. It has even found its way to the radio and only a short time ago Dr. Parsons, the commissioner of mental hygiene in New York state, explained to the radio audience the plan of work which was proposed at the New York Psychiatric Institute and hospital, which is to be located at the great medical center which now is in process of construction in New York City.

In this institution there will be clinics where individuals who are suitable for study will be selected and investigations will be carried on with the hope of making new discoveries, testing plans of treatment and arranging policies which it is hoped and believed will diminish insanity in the community.

This radio address remarked that few realize the great number of people who are in mental distress and go through life handicapped with doubts and fears.

When you consider that worry and dread of ills which never happen sour and embitter the lives of thousands of people, many of whom end up in hospitals for the insane, the importance of steadying the mind and forming correct mental habits is seen in its proper light.

We have a great many institutions for regulating our minds, our bodies and our souls, but here is one which we cannot afford to ignore.

There is too much real as well as imaginary misery in the world which can be prevented and obviated, to turn down a measure like this which aims to accomplish this desirable end.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
F. L. S.: I have had two operations for varicose veins below the knees but they keep returning. My limbs ache and are numb and get tired quickly, and when I go to sleep they cramp when I cross my legs. Are they due to bad circulation, will they get worse, and what can I do for relief?

A. I do not know of anything better for varicose veins than a rubber bandage carefully, but not too tightly, applied from toes to thigh. It must be removed at night and placed for cleanliness in an antiseptic solution, boric acid for example. Varicose veins often come from continued pressure or from standing at one's work for hours at a time.

Rolled Stocking Liked For Derby Winner Saturday

WESTERN MUDDER IS GIVEN ATTENTION FROM WISE PICKERS

Whitney Stable Is Favorite For Classic Of Kentucky Turf

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service
Sports Editor.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—It may be a case of mixing metaphors in a country where everybody is supposed to mix drinks but the fact of the matter is that the name of Rolled Stockings is on every tongue today, twenty-four hours before the field will break from the barriers in the race of all races, Kentucky's annual derby.

Stop a horseman, real or fancied, anywhere along Fourth St., which means bracing the first stranger you meet; then ask him who he likes in the race.

In the first place, if you don't he is likely to misunderstand and either had you a dime or clip on the van dyke. In the second place, he may know something, since it isn't possible that everybody is as dumb as he looks.

Perhaps he will mention the Whitney entry or, Bostonian and Whiskery but, if he does, he will qualify the choice by also naming Rolled Stocking. It may be that Rip Rap, or the Sage Stable, has caught his fancy, for it is quite remarkable the number of imaginations this colt has succeeded in intriguing overnight. Again, however, there will be that second guess on Rolled Stocking.

In the same way, it might be Black Panther or Fred, Jr., a feed bill horse that has managed to get himself taken rather seriously, but the stranger somehow will contrive to get Rolled Stocking into the conversation.

And at least two men in five are picking him to win, although there is slight doubt now that the Whitney entry will go to the post a reigning favorite. You can't go behind this pair any more than you can go behind the name of your neck but, harring that, Rolled Stocking is the stand-out horse of the race today.

The leading toward Rip Rap, Black Panther and a few casual others is a mere symptom; but Rolled Stocking and the Whitney entry are an epidemic.

The colts mentioned seem to be the only ones that are given the chance of an orphan by those who are supposed to know. Osmand, under book favorite, is not esteemed at all after straightening out the tight rope in his last race at the Downs several days ago. Hydromel, a hot choice a week ago, suddenly ran a fever after a good race on Monday and now no one would take him for hacking at the depot.

The Bradley entries, Boo, Bewildered and Buddy Bauer, have everyone at the track looking down the nose at them. They say Boo won't start at all and that Buddy Bauer would be smart, if he didn't, either. Buddy ran twelfth in a field of twelve in the Preakness on Monday.

Here and there, you will find a rascal who likes Osmand and even Scapa Flow, in spite of that colt's unimpressive race at Pimlico; Dan O'Sullivan, who has seen more derbies than the original mad hatter, is sticking with Osmand and Scott Harlan persists in declaring himself on Scapa Flow, but the mob is going the other way.

As for the reps of the field, Saxton, Jock, Kie, another winter delusion; War Eagle, Royal Julian, Candy Blackbird, Crystal Domino, Mr. Kirkwood and Fair Star, they will be among those present and unaccounted for, according to the popular idea hereabouts.

Strange to relate, they like Whiskery better than Bostonian, in spite of the fact that the latter won the Preakness and Whiskery ran third. There is no apparent reason for this attitude except that Whiskery has the better turn of speed and may "break on top," as they say. This is an important consideration in a race like the derby on a probable field of eighteen or twenty horses to hamper the colt that likes to do his running in the stretch.

Bostonian is supposed to be this type. So is Fred, Jr. If either or both is anywhere near the pace at the mile on Saturday there will be a lot of running done down near the grandstand. However, if they are well back in the head of the stretch, all the running in the world won't get them anything except the exercise.

Rip Rap's rise to favor is unexplained by his races in the East. However, the intelligentsia hereabouts claim to have been greatly impressed by his "works" under the watch.

An then we come back to Rolled Stocking, as the male eye inevitably will. They say he was all horse in winning the last derby trial and can run in any going or any company. That closes the book, except for the observation that no derby within ten years has been as open to any good horse as is the one that will take place tomorrow on the Downs.

SCOUTS WHITEWASH KIWANIAN TEAM IN SOFT BALL CONTEST

Boy Scouts easily triumphed over the Kiwanis Club in a Xenia Recreation League soft ball game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday afternoon, turning the game into a track meet to win 41 to 13, by far the largest score recorded in any league games to date.

Scouts paraded around the bases all will and every member of the winning team crossed the plate at least twice. The great score was principally due to the inability of the Kiwanians to field the ball and the team's defense was atrocious.

McLaughlin and Adair divided the pitching for Kiwanis with Gibney hurling the entire game for the Scouts.

Scouts took a lead in the third inning by scoring eight times, which was never relinquished. Tull and Turnbull umpired the contest.

Scout lineup: Monroe, 3b; Bell, ss; Gibney, p; Hampson, cf; Zell, lf; Stout, 1b; Adair, c; Buell, rf; Bice, 2b; Finlay, 1r; Hornick, cf; Kiwanis lineup: Adair, rf; Kolb, ss; Balkantyne, 2b; E. Babb, lf; Coates, 3b; Fairies, c; McLaughlin, 1b; Messenger, lf; Pendry, 1b.

RESERVES TO MEET BELLBROOK IN LOOP GAME HERE SUNDAY

Teams in the Buckeye League, which were idle last Sunday because rain interrupted the schedule, will resume play Sunday afternoon with contests carded for Xenia, Beavertown and Harshmanville diamonds.

Xenia Reserves, accredited with two league victories this season, will attempt to preserve this record against the tail-end Bellbrook nine, which has yet to snag a victory in two starts. Bellbrook has re-enforced its lineup for this game and so anything can happen.

It is understood Bellbrook has obtained the pitching services of Bob Herman, who was released by the Reserves after he had won three straight games. Thus Herman will probably hurl against his former teammates Sunday at Washington Park.

Dayton Police will go to Beavertown for a game and the Osborn Miami Cements will play at Harshmanville.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. HARVEY HUMSTON, 80

Mrs. Ellen Powers Humston, 80, wife of Harvey Humston, died Thursday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Laurel Thomas, 131 W. Main St. A fall seven weeks ago in which she suffered a fracture of the right leg and the infirmities of age, caused her death. Her decline had been gradual since the injury.

Mrs. Humston was born near Paintersville, July 27, 1846, the daughter of Alfred and Susannah Powers, and had spent all of her life in Greene County. Her marriage to Mr. Humston took place in March, 1865, and for more than thirty years they occupied a farm south of Xenia. For the last six years both had made their home with Mrs. Thomas.

Surviving Mrs. Humston are her husband and her daughter, Mrs. Thomas, one son, Hal Humston, having died fourteen years ago. She also leaves a brother, Eli Powers, Dayton, a grandson, Glenn Humston and a great-grandson, Robert Humston, both of Xenia.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the home after 5 o'clock Friday evening.

MRS. OTIS WOLFORD CLAIMED BY DEATH

Mrs. Otis Wolford, 73, well known Greene County woman, died at McClellan Hospital, Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, from pneumonia and a complication of ailments. Mrs. Wolford was removed from her home between Cedarville and Jamestown to the hospital a week ago in a serious condition and her strength continued to fall.

Mrs. Wolford, before marriage, Miss Elizabeth Brown, was the last of her immediate family and was the daughter of Nixon and Hannah Brown, who were early settlers of the vicinity between Cedarville and Jamestown. She was a sister of the late Mrs. W. P. Maden.

She leaves her husband, Otis B. Wolford. During girlhood, Mrs. Wolford became affiliated with the Friends Church.

Funeral services will be held at the home of the deceased on Main St. between Cedarville and Jamestown, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in Woodland Cemetery, Xenia.

GALLAHER COMPANY TO OPEN STORE HERE

The Gallaher Drug Co., in Dayton, chain store company, has leased the room in the Schmidt Block, E. Main St., formerly occupied by the Tilton Clothing Store, and will open a cut-rate drug store in the space by June 1, it was disclosed Friday.

The drug company has already signed the lease and work has begun in remodeling the room to accommodate the store. Shelves, soda fountains and other equipment will be installed.

The Gallaher Drug Co., has for its officers J. H. Gallaher, president; C. D. Chamberlain, vice president; J. R. Walker, secretary-treasurer and M. A. Kidd, general manager. Sixteen stores, wholesale and retail, are operated by the company in various cities of Ohio, including Dayton, Troy, Middletown and Springfield.

BILL TO COMPENSATE VICTIM APPROVED

Governor Vic Donahey has signed a bill sponsored by State Senator William Clark, Urbana, allowing Miss Gladys Bookwalter, Bowersville, $5,000 compensation for injuries sustained when she was struck by the governor's automobile on Main St. in Springfield two years ago.

Miss Bookwalter was a resident of Mechanicsburg at the time of the accident, and was engaged in teaching school in the eastern part of Champaign County. She received severe injuries when her automobile was struck by the governor's car.

FINED FOR KEEPING UNLICENSED DOGS

Charles Rutner, who lives three-fourths of a mile east of Zimmerman, off the Dayton and Xenia Pike, was fined $7 and costs by J. E. Jones, justice of the peace, Thursday on a charge of harboring four unlicensed dogs.

The charge was proffered by Alonzo Edwards, county dog catcher. Edwards was refused permission to take the tagless dogs away when he made a trip to the farm home. He then swore out a warrant for Rutner's arrest.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff George Sugden and Kenneth C. Barr, county road patrolman.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The junior and senior English Club held a "hamburger sale" Thursday afternoon. As usual, all sandwiches were sold and the club reported a neat profit. These sales are growing in popularity with students.

Friday, June 7 is "Class Day" and is being looked forward to with eagerness by not only the seniors but by the entire school, since on that date the Premier Roll selections will be announced. Class Day presents many other significant features which will be announced later as they are arranged.

HIGH SCHOOL FIELD DAY COMING MAY 20

Central High School's first annual "Field Day" will be held Friday, May 20, and a complete program is being arranged.

The exercises will be held at Cox Memorial Athletic Field. Both junior and senior high students are eligible to participate in the events. Six contests are open to the boys and girls of senior high, six to the boys of junior high, and four to the junior high girls.

Coach Victor Kolb, of Central senior high, and Coach Patterson, of junior high, are in charge of details of the program.

CENTRAL HIGH GOLF TEAM ENGAGES TROY

Central High School's golf team, which has been practicing at intervals under the direction of Coach Vic Kolb, will try conclusions with Troy High golfers over the Troy golf course Saturday.

Tuesday, May 17, a return match will be played with Troy over the Xenia Country Club nine-hole course. It is announced. This will probably be the only home match of the season.

Central is represented this year by the first golf team in the school's history and although all members of the team have had prior experience on the links, just what Xenia's fate will be against the Trojan team is a matter for conjecture.

ITALY CUTS WAGES TO STABILIZE LIRA

ROME, May 13.—The movement to create a new value for the lira by reducing wages and living costs is sweeping Italy.

From dozens of provinces come reports that workers have accepted voluntary reductions in wages of from five to ten per cent, these reductions being approved by the trades unions.

Merchants are cutting the prices of food stuffs and wearing materials and even landlords are reducing rents, the popular demand for lower prices to meet lower wages being accepted by those who have commodities to sell.

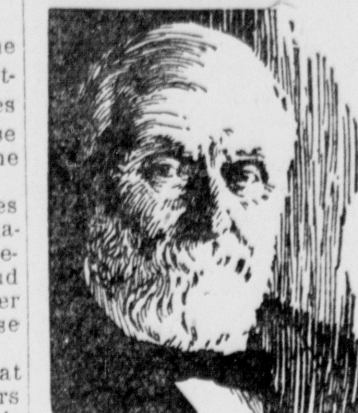

Ten thousand dock workers at Genoa and all railroad workers have accepted reductions in their wages, and orders for lower wages have even been extended to employees of hotels and restaurants.

STARTS SENTENCE

Robert Johnson, 21, was taken to the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield Friday in the custody of Sheriff Ohmer Tate to begin a sentence of from one to fifteen years imposed in Common Pleas Court, after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary and larceny. The trip was made by motor.

Women Need a Mild Laxative -Not a "Physic"

Countless girls and women now know how foolish and needless it is to "purge" and "physic" themselves to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, sallow skin, colds, or sour, gassy stomach.

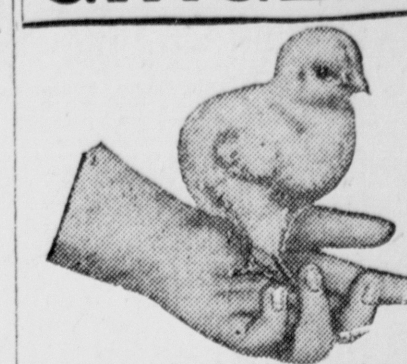

They have found that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate girl or woman. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and so pleasant here early today when he discovered the building in flames, John Darphozsky, 37, carried his wife and seven children to safety down a ladder, making eight trips despite the fact that he was badly hurt in the leap.

Darphozsky collapsed after the last trip, and was rushed to a hospital, where his condition was reported as serious. His home was destroyed by the fire.

STUBBORN, UN-SIGHTLY PIMPLES ON FACE AND BACK

Skin now clear and smooth

Doubs, Md., July 13:—"Three or four years ago, my face and back broke out with pimples and blackheads. When I picked or pressed them they would get very sore and burn. I used several kinds of cold cream, but none of them helped a bit. Then I happened to see your advertisement and thought I would try Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. Within a few weeks I had not a pimple or blackhead at all and now my face is nice and smooth. I have also found Resinol Soap very refreshing after coming in out of the sun or wind." (Signed) Miss Elsie E. Painter.

If you are troubled with a rough, pimply skin, ask your druggist today for Resinol Soap and Ointment, and see what an improvement a week's use will make.

FREE—Sample of each of these products if you will write Dept. 62, Baltimore, Md.

Nutrition experts give a new importance to the whole grains

Why is it that mothers are now being urged so strongly to give whole-grain foods? It is because they provide so much that is needed for normal growth in children (and radiant health in later years).

Mother's Oats, with milk, supplies a rich store of vitamins and minerals which are lacking in an ordinary highly-refined cereal.

The tender bran of the oat, so valuable for roughage, is included, too. These important factors, too often neglected, make a bowl of Mother's Oats with milk a growth food which mothers everywhere are appreciating more and more.

Children love its rich flavor and notice the smooth, even texture which results from the extra-careful way it is milled.

Two kinds—the kind you have always known or Quick (cooks in 2 1/2 to 5 minutes). Both with cereals interchangeable with the Aunt Jenima coupons, which bring you electrical conveniences, books, toys for the children, etc.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

A SOAP AND WATER BATH STIRS UP TRINKY'S WRATH

Trinky, the Ritzie mascot, could not honestly say that his lot had been much bettered. For a little puppy to have a tin can tied to his tail and be teased by a whole army of boys was bad enough, but to be rescued from that only to be subjected to a scrubbing with soap and water was almost equally humiliating for the little tramp dog.

Of course he had not yet become a full-fledged member of the club and didn't know what an honor it was to become the Ritzie mascot.

As Marty, Rag and Tag, the twins, and the two girls, Patsy and Betty Ann, had carried the little fox terrier triumphantly home after rescuing it from the fifth grade boys, they had busily made plans for their newly acquired mascot.

Trinky had been decided upon for a name because they had never heard of a dog called that and, of course, the Ritzie mascot couldn't have the same name as any regular dog. Of course he would have to be taught to obey, carry messages and deliver all the party invitations.

That Trinky had a big future ahead of him as the Ritzie mascot was easily seen by the five club members.

They started with the first lesson as soon as Patsy had wiped him dry from the very first bath he had ever had.

"Come, Trinky; come here Trinky," called Marty, holding up a piece of meat that he had rescued from the kitchen.

The little fox terrier sniffed the air and then trotted forward obediently. When the meat was all gone and Marty called again Trinky only blinked, making no attempt to answer the summons.

"We can't allow Trinky to be as disobedient as that," objected Rag.

"I've got an idea," broke in Tag. "Have you got a piece of cord in the carpenter shop, Marty?"

After a half hour of work, the boys had made a temporary collar out of an old leather belt, fastened this around Trinky's neck and tied a cord to it.

Leading him into the carpenter shop, Tag started his lesson. "Here Trinky, come Trinky," he called, but the little puppy only blinked as he had done for Marty.

Calling again, Tag slowly pulled on the cord that was fastened to the dog's collar and pulled the puppy towards him. When Tag repeated this a second time, Trinky was still reluctant, but the third time, realizing that he would be pulled if he didn't come of his own accord, the little puppy trotted forward promptly when his name was called.

Trinky had learned his first lesson, but the Ritzies had learned one, too. It would take a great deal of patience to teach the little dog. They practiced that first lesson over and over for days until Trinky would come immediately whenever one of the Ritzies called his name.

A corner of the carpenter shop, made soft and cosy with an old blanket, was given to Trinky and there he slept at night and stood guard over the little shop during the day while the Ritzies were away at school.

Teaching him to come when his name is called is the very first trick you should teach your dog and you will find it easy if you follow the method that the Ritzies used.

Tomorrow the Ritzies decide upon their secret knock and password. There may be a way that you can find them out. Don't miss tomorrow's story.

MAYOR EFFECTS BIG SAVING AND SLICES CITY'S TAX RATE $5

LYNN, Mass., May 13.—The tax rate of Lynn was cut $5 this year. Though the proverbial fire-spot may not represent much when piled alone a neat pile accumulated when every $1,000 worth of property in the city was assessed for that amount. At least so the city fathers of other municipalities believe.

As a consequence the ability of the city of Lynn to cut its tax rate $5 drew queries of "How" from all over New England. The tax question has been of extreme importance in this section this year because of the industrial situation.

The answer to the queries received in Lynn contained but few words. They were in effect, "Mayor Bauer." In other words, to their chief executive, Ralph S. Bauer, do the people of Lynn attribute their reduction in taxes.

How It Was Done.

A few of the methods used by Mayor Bauer in reducing the municipal expenditures follow.

The appropriation for the assessing department was cut $3,647 by having the police do the listing of polls.

The securing of an additional load per team per day in refuse and garbage disposal and other economies cut expenses $24,000 a year in the disposal of refuse and garbage.

Thirteen thousand dollars was cut from the cost of street cleaning by not carrying on the permanent payrolls from January to May. 179 men who had previously been retained through the winter although they worked only during snowstorms.

By increasing stable expense $3,000, the city could use its own teams instead of hiring them at $10 a day.

The street department cut $5,000 from the cost of maintenance of streets and sidewalks, and $5,000 from the upkeep of equipment.

The city stone crushers had been furnishing stone at $2.60 a ton. When it was found crushed market for $1.70 a ton the stone crusher was shut down and the saving amounted to $5,867.88.

Saving On Oil
About one fifth of the oil formerly used in street lighting was found sufficient for this purpose, and along with a reduction in the cost per gallon, a saving of $10,000 was effected.

A revision of the lists of those receiving aid from the Poor Department and the requirement that everyone receiving aid make a new application, saved the city $29,500.

Eighty thousand dollars was cut from school expense.

The water board saved $10,000 by requiring land owners to pay the entire cost of extensions of mains over the private ways and $5,000 in the supply item.

A personal inspection by the Mayor after a heavy storm showed that a patrol of the reservoir grounds which was supposed to be made was not made, although pay therefore was being received, the untrodden snow exposing the fall-ure to perform.

By combining all the coal contracts for the several city departments into one, $4 a ton was saved on coal. The same principle was applied to the purchase of gasoline for city owned cars.

ALABAMA'S CUTEST CUTIE

Six hundred fellow students of Miss Ruth Hornsby, at the Women's College of Alabama, have voted her the cutest thing in the entire college. This makes twice in a row for Miss Hornsby, whose home town is Dothan, Ala. She won last year, too.

BATH TWP. FARMER GUILTY SAYS JURY

Daniel Lang, wealthy Bath Twp. farmer, was convicted of a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act by the federal court petit jury in Dayton Thursday, after a deliberation of two hours and fifteen minutes.

Returning of this verdict brought the petit jury's duties to an end until Monday, when it will reconvene to consider what are said to be some of the more important indictments of the grand jury.

Lang was arrested in Greene County by Sidney Cusack, constable of Bath Twp. His trial was a lengthy one. The court deferred sentence.

BOARD OF REVISION HEARING APPEALS

Board of Revision, composed of County Auditor R. O. Wead, County Commissioner Herman

Eaver and County Treasurer F. A. Jackson, resumed its deliberations this week, hearing some of the complaints filed by city taxpayers, who objected to the valuations placed on property in Xenia at the recent re-appraisal of property.

The board has viewed the property in question and is now engaged in hearing the few individual complaints on file.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Philip Wynne Tracy IV returns home very late one night and tells his mother he is engaged to Natalie Jones and hopes to marry her before leaving for college.

Mr. Jones, who is the Tracy's milkman, objects to Philip quite as much as Mrs. Tracy objects to Natalie.

Philip's mother unconsciously interests her son in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of hers who is coming to visit her and will stay at her house over a party she is going to give for Philip. Without his mother's knowledge Phil plans to bring Natalie to the party through his friend, Rodney Maxwell. Natalie decides to go because she thinks Phil wants her to.

Meantime Philip meets Mrs. Hilliard at the train and takes her to luncheon. He finds that she has fallen in love at first sight with this woman much older than himself and hopes that Natalie will not come to the party after all.

After the first kiss on a midnight ride Philip only lives when he is with Mrs. Hilliard, and asks her if she will go driving again after the party. Natalie surprises every one by coming to the party.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XIV

RODNEY MAXWELL BLUNDERS. "YOU see, Mrs. Tracy, I've brought her!" Rodney Maxwell exultantly exclaimed as he pushed Natalie forward.

Phil felt his heart stop beating as he saw his mother visibly freeze up. But the girl standing in front of Mrs. Tracy was so exquisitely beautiful and so palpably innocent of any wrong-doing that she could not punish her for what she at once decided was her son's reprehensible conduct.

"It's just one of the things his father would have done, expecting to carry it off with a high hand," she thought bitterly. Then her good breeding came to her aid and with only a second's perceptible hesitation she said: "Yes, Rod, I see you have brought Natalie."

This speech seemed to surprise the girl. She grew a little paler. It was as if she were asking herself could she have been mistaken—did Mrs. Tracy really invite her? Then she threw up her gallant little head—she would play the game to the end.

"You see, Mrs. Tracy, when Rod brought me your message I was at first heart-broken because I thought it would be impossible for me to come, but Aunt Julia, to whom I told my story and who knew that father would refuse if I asked permission to come to Phil's party, said that I might come and stay there with her all night. It has made me very happy."

"There, I told you it was all right," blundered Rodney Maxwell.

Philip raised his face intending to convey the fact to Rodney that if he opened his lips again he would blacken his eye right after the party was over.

But Rod had moved from where he expected to find him and his eyes met and clashed with those of Natalie Jones.

Here were like eyes he had never seen before—they had lost their lapis lazuli tint and had the effect of cold blue steel. He had to acknowledge that she was beautiful—more beautiful than he had ever seen her. Her white tulle dress billowed out about her almost like that of a ballet dancer and was looped up here and there with white garlands. There was something radiant of color about her except her extraordinary pale gold hair which was swathed about her small head like a cap and pinned at the side below her left ear with a couple more garlands. And her slippers, which by some coquetish tact she had made of some material of the same pale gold as her hair.

On her flat, white, young breast just where it set y met the low neck of her bodice there gleamed a lovely pearl suspended from a thin gold chain.

"Some pearl for the milkman's daughter," whispered Luella Carr. "Bad taste, don't you think, to wear such a blatant imitation when she might have known that Phil's mother would bring out all her real diamonds?"

"Gosh, Lou, have you got us all sketched as matrimonial prospects?" Luella Carr blushed and kindly glance Cameron to cover it said: "Natalie's pearl is not an imitation."

"Don't do that, Wynne!" she commanded.

tion, Luella. It is real. Her aunt must have given it to her. I remember my mother saying that a very wealthy Japanese ambassador fell in love with her one winter while she was at Washington and wanted to marry her. Of course, her brother was furious although I notice, however, he let her accept the $20,000 pearl."

"Some romance, I should say," said Jerry.

"Oh, I don't know," commented Luella. "I don't think I would consider it romantic if a Chinaman would fall in love with me."

"But I think you would appreciate the romance of the gift of a $20,000 pearl, Lou," said Jerry.

Philip, whose ear had been distracted by the gossip comments of his friends, now bent forward to hear what Natalie was saying.

"It was very sweet of you, Mrs. Tracy, to think of me and I want to tell you how I appreciate it right now for fear I won't get another chance. The plan by which you were able to ignore my father was masterly."

Phil this time caught his mother's eye—and he wished he hadn't.

She looked again at Natalie and met with only the most innocent smile. She had to acknowledge to herself the girl was quite as clever as she was beautiful.

Here Rod blundered again: "That is what I said to Natalie—I told her that I knew you had sent the message for neither Phil nor I were clever enough to have made it up."

"At least you could not have done so, Rod," ventured Natalie with a smile.

Mrs. Tracy seemed to think that this verbal skirmishing had gone far enough and she looked around and gathered her guests up with her eyes. "If we are all here we might as well go on the Plaza."

"How many cars have we got here, fellows?" asked Phil.

"I can take six in the limousine," said Lucia. "Will you come, Luella, and you Claire? And that with Jerry, Pierce and Jack will fill it."

"Splendid," said Mrs. Tracy. "Rodney and Lyra, Bernice and William can go with me—and you, Philip, can bring Natalie in your roadster."

"Tally one for Mother," said Phil to himself even while he bowed inside.

He knew that his mother had noticed that Natalie hadn't spoken to him since she came in and she was taking this way of getting even with him for the trick he had played upon her. Well, he wouldn't give her the satisfaction of letting her know she had scored.

"Come on, Natalie," he said, catching up her white velvet evening coat with its white fox collar.

She allowed him to put it on her without speaking.

He let the others get off first and then as he helped her into his car he said: "Do you know you have not spoken to me tonight, Natalie?"

"I waited until I could have time and place to say what was coming to you."

"In meantime may I say that you have never looked so sweet as you do tonight?"

LOOK here, Wynne, you cannot head me off in that way. I know I am looking well, but I didn't do it for you. I knew I was going to your mother's party in the role of the red-headed step-child and I determined that whatever those snobbish females that I have known ever since I went to kindergarten with them would have to say about me they would not be able to say it about my clothes."

"They certainly could not," agreed Philip fervently.

"How did you get your father to let you buy a frock that would show those fascinating dimples just below your shoulder blades?"

"He didn't buy it—Aunt Julia gave it to me. And, Wynne, she insisted that I should wear this pearl—she said it would be mine anyway some day."

She hesitated thinking that she had allowed this arrogant young man sitting beside her by flattery to take her mind away from what she had determined to say to him. She rather disliked herself for being susceptible to anything Wynne might say to her.

Encouraged, Philip's right arm was stealing around her. She quickly jerked away.

"Don't do that, Wynne," she commanded.

"Why not, Nat? Didn't I tell you that I stipulated when I bought this car that it should be a perfectly safe one for a left-handed driver?"

"That's not funny, Wynne, and I'm not going to laugh at it because I know you are saying all these foolish things to get me good-natured. But I saw through your silly plan to get me to the party immediately. I see through all your silly plans. Do you suppose that I did not know that your mother never sent me an invitation to this party by Rod?"

"Well, what made you come then if you thought she had not invited you?"

Phil was goaded into saying something not quite fair or gentlemanly.

"Because, Wynne, I thought even if she didn't want me there you did," she answered a bit pathetically.

"And don't you think so now, dear?" his Tracy vanity made him ask.

"No, Wynne."

"Well, you must have had some reason beside that for coming for you are here."

"If you thought, as you probably did, that you would be treated like a red-headed step-child I should have thought you would have stayed away even if you were sure that I had gone to some elaborate maneuvering to get you here."

"At first, Wynne, I wanted to come for that very reason, but immediately when you did not come to see me and help me to carry out your 'maneuver' I knew that something had changed your mind and you hoped I would not come."

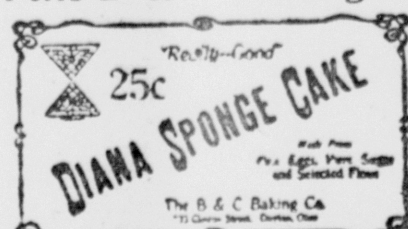

"That afternoon on the avenue I was sure that something was wrong. Your face settled into lines of such obvious discontent and disappointment, but I didn't think it was anything connected with me. I thought you were unhappy because you knew you would have to dance attendance on your mother's friend."

More is coming. The party is not over yet and Mrs. Tracy has other plans. They will be related tomorrow.
